ROAD ENGINEER POST GOES TO MANSFIELDER

Ex-Service Director Receives District Highway Appointment at Ashland.

LIQUOR JOB FOR HAWLEY

Former Postmaster Slated to Become Second Assistant to State Director.

With the government of Ohio in the hands of a Republican administration today, one Mansfielder had received a state appointment and another was scheduled to be announced later.

Murray D. Shaffer, former Mansfield service-director, under former Mayor Earl A. McFarland, was to assume his duties today as engineer in Division No. 3 of the state highway department with headquarters at Ashland.

Harry E. Hawley, former Mansfield postmaster, was expected to be named second assistant to Prof.
J. B. Taylor, new state liquor director.

Due on Job Today.
Appointed by Col. Robert S.
Beightler, new state highway director, Shaffer was to report today at Ashland to succeed H. A.
Keller, who has been acting engineer since early in November.

Shaffer, who resigned as service-safety director in May, 1937, to become field engineer for the Portland Cement association, had been endorsed for the division highway post by Republican central committees in six of the eight counties in the Ashland district, including Richland county.

Shaffer will receive $4,000 a year and his supervision will include highway activities in Richland, Ashland, Crawford, Medina, Wayne, Lorain, Huron and Erie counties.

Gets Endorsement.
Endorsed by the Richland County Republican Central committee, Hawley was scheduled to be appointed second assistant in the state liquor department at Columbus, within the next two or three days.

Reached by telephone today,
Prof. Taylor, state liquor director, said the appointment had not been

'HELL AHEAD'

Davey Warns Bricker as Kent Parade Welcomes Him Home.

KENT —(U.P.)—Bands blared and fireworks flared as Kent welcomed home her most famous son, Martin L. Davey. More than 5,000 citizens lined the streets of this usually quiet college town to put on a celebration rivaling that of any football victory.

The former governor and Mrs.
Davey found the city's welcome mat brushed off and awaiting them as they arrived in their home city early last night. They had dinner at home and then were escorted by two bands and automobiles along the crowded streets to the old opera house.

Here from the stage where 25 years ago he had launched his political career in a campaign for mayor, he wished Gov. Bricker well, adding "He has a lot of hell ahead of him."

New Yorker Would Forbid Sale
Of Gas to Germany.

WASHINGTON —(U.S.)—Rep.
O'Toole (D) New York today introduced a bill legally banning shipment of helium to Germany.

The bill would take away the discretionary power now vested in the secretary of interior, and impose an outright injunction against exportation of the non-inflammable gas to Germany. Secretary Ickes repeatedly has refused to permit its export to that country.

according to a message received by the New Zealand shipping company, owners of the vessel.

Although the crew was successfully battling the flames, the message stated, the Rimutaka veered from its course and proceeded toward the United States steamer Yamachichi, some 300 miles away.

Frankfurter Unfit to Sit On Supreme Court, Witness Says

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Collis O. Redd, national director of the Constitutional Crusaders of America, told a senate judiciary committee today that Felix Frankfurter was unfit to sit on the supreme court because he violated the "liberalism of Thomas Paine, Washington, Jefferson and all the rest."

Redd testified at a senate judiciary subcommittee hearing on the nomination of the Harvard law professor. Several witnesses appeared in opposition to the nomination, but there was every indication that the committee and the senate soon would approve the appointment.

Frankfurter declined an invita-

Ex-Convict, Stabbed 14 Times, Slain

Killers Carve Wounds In Shape of Heart on Victim's Body.

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH — In a muddy ditch along an abandoned roadway, Sam Mollise, 49-year-old ex-convict, was found slain today with 14 stab wounds in the shape of a heart on his chest.

The victim also had been shot twice in the head and once in the heart.

Police called it a gang murder.
Records at Western penitentiary showed Mollise had been sentenced to serve 15 to 30 years eight years ago for extortion and robbery, and that he was on parole.

His bullet riddled and slashed body was found along an old road known as the "Shades of Death," where legend has it robbers once ambushed a Pittsburgh-to-Steubenville stage and killed all the passengers.

The killing occurred within earshot of a late retiring farmer, Italo Sicher, 40. He told Detectives
Michael Ford and Joseph Robinson he heard a car driving up, sounds of a scuffle and then someone crying out:

"Please don't kill me—please don't."

Shots rang out, and then something was tossed from the automobile. The car sped away.

At the morgue, Deputy Coroner Donald Connors examined the body and reported the strange heart pattern made by the stab wounds which he described as having been made with a narrow blade, probably a large penknife.

Mollise's two sons, Frank, 20, and James, 19, identified him.
Neither could shed any light on their father's death.

James told detectives he last saw his father about dinner time when he left to buy cigarettes. Mrs.
Mollise, the boys' mother, said her husband left to accompany a friend in an automobile.
County Detective A. T. Lorch said:

"We think it's gang murder, but we don't know yet what the motivation was."

OPENS BIDS

School Board Acts Tomorrow on Simpson Contract.

Bids on construction of the John Simpson junior high school building will be opened at noon Wednesday by the board of education and the contract may be awarded tomorrow afternoon or tomorrow night.

Fourteen bids on the general construction, estimated at $299-122, have been submitted today, but none of them were from Mansfield contractors.

The Steine-Wolfe Construction company, Fremont, which is in charge of construction of the Johnny Appleseed building, is one of the bidders.

The school board will let contracts for installation of plumbing, heating and electrical equipment.
Total cost of the building and equipment, exclusive of architect's fees, is estimated at $413,460. Vernon Redding and Associates are the architects.

CHAMBERLAIN GOES TO ROME, JOBLESS RIOT

Premier's Departure Marred
as Crowd Parades Black Coffin at Station.

BATTLE WITH POLICE

Demonstrators Cry 'Appease Unemployed, Not Mussolini,'
During Disorders.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Unemployed held a riotous demonstration at Victoria station today as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain left for Rome to visit Premier Benito Mussolini and, in all probability, to learn the fate of his policy of European diplomatic appeasement.

Unemployed demonstrators contented themselves with booing and cat calling as Chamberlain departed, while a crowd of 500 other people cheered.

Chamberlain, smiling and carrying his famous umbrella, seemed unaware of the demonstrators as he bade farewell to cabinet ministers gathered to see him off.

The prime minister and Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, will hold a tea table conference at Paris this afternoon with French Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, to discuss Chamberlain's program for Rome.

See Due Tomorrow.

Chamberlain and Halifax will continue on to Rome this evening, to arrive tomorrow afternoon and be greeted by Mussolini.

With Chamberlain and Halifax today went Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent under secretary of state for foreign affairs; Maurice Ingram, head of the foreign department of the foreign office; Osmond Cheverly, Chamberlain's principal private secretary; Lord Douglass, Chamberlain's parliamentary private secretary; Oliver Harvey, Halifax's principal private secretary, and Charles Peake, foreign office press representative.

As Chamberlain left, Adolf Hitler had just announced his intention of seeking equality of strength in submarines with the British navy. Mussolini's Fascist troops were fighting alongside the Spanish Nationalists in a gigantic civil war offensive, timed to coincide with Chamberlain's visit and impress him with the inevitability of an insurgent victory.

Italian newspapers, closely controlled by Mussolini were clam-oring for concessions from France.
The Paris teleconference was a notification to Italy that Great Britain and France remained allies in event of an international trouble caused by Italian demands on France.

As Chamberlain was packing last night, the war office here issued a 3,000 word statement angrily denouncing and denying allegations that British troops had committed atrocities in Palestine. "Lying, exaggerated propaganda," was charged. Though the war office did not say so, the statement was aimed directly at Italy and Germany.

Great Britain's prospective friends, whose newspapers and officially approved wireless programs for weeks have broadcast to the world such statements as "the usual British atrocities in Palestine continued today."

In official quarters, where the reports were denied, it was indi-which a student of chemistry was killed and another injured. One student was arrested and identi-

Brooklyn In Panic Over Eerie Wails

Queer Phenomenon Puts City In 'World's End' Scare During Night.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Hundreds of residents of Brooklyn, frightened out of their homes last night by a strange rumbling noise in the heavens, today were still groping for some feasible explanation of the unusual phenomenon.

More than 300 panicky Brooklynites swamped the borough police headquarters with frantic calls for assurance that the world was not ending as one patrolman, John Handley, frankly admitted he feared it was. Mrs. Florence Schwartz said the noise sounded to her "like a thousand airplanes all going at once" but Mrs. Prudence asserted "it played the scales from walls to squeals."

The noise was described as a screaming and sighing, a rumbling and humming, something akin to the sound a giant roller coaster in the heavens might make. As suddenly as the unnatural noise began about 10:40 last night it stopped at 11:21.

Hundreds of persons ran out into the streets in various stage of dress and undress to peer heavenwards in futile search of an explanation for the eerie rumbling.
Street cars and buses halted and the passengers craned their necks toward the sky.

"It is like a stratosphere roller skating rink," one Brooklynite informed the police.

Nothing like it had occurred in Brooklyn within recent memory and after the first surge of panic and fright subsided the usual host of facetious explanations was forthcoming.

One thing was certain, however,
and that was that early retirees were routed out of bed and late retirees were rendered so excited they didn't want to go to bed.

Police radio cars sped from section to section, reassuring puzzled and frightened Brooklyn residents.
The police were just as puzzled as anybody else.

Several persons likened the noise to that of a squadron of airplanes. Many persons called Floyd Bennett airport which reported no flights of airplanes in that great a number.

Later, police at Greenwich, Conn., reported hearing a distant rumbling noise there.

SNOW ON WAY

It's Like April Today, But It'll Be Like January Soon.

The wiles and contrary behavior of April marked today's weather, so that it was difficult to remember that it was a January day.
But despite the balmy air, the unseasonable temperature and warm showers, cold weather and snow flurries are forecast for tomorrow, with cloudy skies and lowering temperature tonight.

A light, warm rain last night was followed by a stiff blow early this morning which broke branches off trees in some sections and blew down a tree on Marion avenue between Bartley and Sherman avenue. The street was blocked until city workmen could saw the tree up and haul it away.

The mercury yesterday climbed almost to 60 in Mansfield and stood at 54 at noon today.

tion of Governor Bricker yester-

Welfare Office Swamped As WPA Lays Off Women Workers

Richland county was faced with a new problem today—that of caring for women WPA workers who have been laid off and shifted to the department of public welfare.

With only $40,500 available for the department this year, far less than the estimated needs, the welfare office was swamped today with requests for aid.

Mrs. Katherine McMichael, county supervisor of the department of aid for dependent children and blind, said she had a waiting list of nearly 50 women who are eligible to receive funds for their minor children, and dozens more appeals for help come to her daily.

County officials saw an increase in the direct relief load or a change in the federal laws governing the welfare division as the only solution to the problem.

Under the present set-up, the county provides one-third of the funds for the care of dependent children and indigent blind, while the state and federal governments furnish the rest, or one-third each.

In dismissing women WPA workers, the federal government plans to shift them to other welfare departments, Mrs. McMichael said. Approximately 52 women on household aid, sewing and other projects in the county have been laid off in the past 10 days.

To be eligible for aid to dependent children, a mother must have at least one child under 16 whose father is dead or missing, and there must be no able wage earners in the family.

NEW GOVERNOR TO ACT SOON, FRIENDS SAY

Attaches Indicate Executive Decided on Investigation
Just Before Inaugural.

DRAWS BUDGET MESSAGE

Goes Before Joint Assembly Session Tomorrow; Calls for Inquiry Later.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—One of Gov.
John W. Bricker's first acts as chief executive of Ohio will be to order a special grand jury convened to investigate the conduct of the state government during the past four years, the United Press was informed today by sources close to the governor.

It was understood that within a few days the governor would make his position clear with a detailed formal announcement.

Works on Budget.

At a press conference this morning, Gov. Bricker was asked if he cared to say anything about his plans for calling a grand jury.

"Not today, no," he replied.
He said that he was working on the budget message, which he expects to deliver at a joint session of the house and senate Wednesday night.

His friends said his decision was made finally just before he was inaugurated. They indicated he felt it was imperative that the new administration move to fulfill without delay this campaign promise, which he made in a radio speech, Monday, Aug. 15.

The task of directing a grand jury would fall upon Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert, newly installed as the state's chief law officer.

Presumably a special grand jury would be called in Franklin county, but the attorney general would have power if the governor makes his authority sufficiently broad, to summon juries in any or all of the 88 counties.

Defies 'Pressure.'

It was known that considerable pressure had been exerted to dissuade the governor from putting into action this particular campaign promise, but that after dis-

Advice
Gets Dose
Of Her Own Medicine

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I've always had plenty of boy friends, and thought it a big joke to kid them along, and when they start to fall in love, I'd just send them off. But now it's different. I've been going with him for eight months now, and he has been just wonderful to me, and I know I'm deeply in love. But here's the problem—a would-be girl friend of mine told him an untruth about me, saying I had been making dates with someone else on the sly. Of course, this made him angry and he broke up with me, and said he was never coming back.
When I meet him on the street or anywhere else, he speaks but he won't come to see me any more. I wanted to give him a ring which he had given me for a birthday gift, but he vowed he'd never speak to me again if I did that. So I kept the ring.
By the time this gets into the paper, I'm sure you and the boy friend will have settled the misunderstanding brought about by the would-be girl friend. I get many letters like yours, where they say "someone told a lie on me." If a young man believes anything a chance stranger may say of his sweetheart, how does he get anywhere in his love affairs?
But as you tell me you were in the habit of kidding the boys along, perhaps the fates are catching up with you by giving you a dose of your own medicine.

Marriage Meddlers
By ADELE GARRISON
Continuation of "Married Comrades"
Dick stared at me reproachfully as I asked him what he wanted Mary and me to do after we should have taken the taxi from the hotel to the Jersey station second nearest the city on the line upon which we ostensibly should travel from Thorp's home, as indicated in my carefully-composed letter to Miss Whitlock.
"That's the question of a nitwit," he said, "and I never have known you to lack brains before."
"I'm sorry," I said deprecatingly, but secretly enjoying the situation as a retaliation for his insisting that I "take notes" of his directions, "but I do want to be sure I understand you exactly. It would be awful if we make a mistake."
"We won't make any mistake," he said shortly, "if you pay attention to what I'm saying."
"I am all ears," I said demurely.
"Then keep them open," he snapped. "It ought to be plain to a year-old baby that you will wait at the station until the train comes in from Thorp's village. Then you and Mary will board it, ride in it to the end of the line, take the tubes over to the Penn station, then get a taxi to the Lansfield."
"It sounds easy," I said. "And there'll be no need for dodging, will there?"
"Why should there be?" he countered. "Your letter to Miss Whitlock states that you're coming back shortly. That's the only route to the city from Thorp's home, where you're supposed to be staying. There's no reason why you shouldn't travel openly, even a bit ostentatiously, over that route and back to the Lansfield. It will convince old Phil of the truth of your story of having been in South Jersey as nothing else could."
"I hope so," I sighed doubtfully, for, indeed, I was much perturbed over this latest plan to "out-fox the fox," for if ever a man deserved the name Reynard, it was Philip Veritzen, and I was skeptical of the success of any plan to outwit him.
He hesitated oddly, and I had the sudden conviction that the "one thing more" had nothing to do with Mary's problems.
"Yes?" I said encouragingly.
"What about your plans for the next two weeks?" he asked. "Are you going to stay put here in the city, or are you planning to go out to the farm and hold the royal smelling salts to the royal noses again?"

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES
To Flush out Acids and Other Poisonous Waste
Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of kidney tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the beginning of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Kidney Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

THEATERS
A FEW of the Hollywood studios remember the old players of silent days, who still have much to give to pictures in the way of talent. Under contract as bit players are Rosemary Theby, (widow of Harry Myers who just died), King Baggott and Flora Finch, at the M-G-M studio; Warner Brothers have Nat Carr, Leo White, Vera Lewis, Paul Panzer, Stuart Holmes and Clara Horton; while Ethel Clayton, one of the screen beauties not so long ago, and Gloria Williams are to be found at Paramount. One of the tragedies of the film industry is that the professional life of many of the greatest players is comparatively short, and that they plummet from stardom to oblivion in a few months.
Half-and-Half Costumes.
Nelson Eddy doesn't make a clean break between costume roles and modern roles in "Sweethearts." In fact he does a half-and-half, wearing some dashing and colorful uniforms in the "show within the show" sequences, and present-day masculine attire as a 1939 husband and Broadway star in the modern sequences. Jeanette MacDonald also wears some picturesque costumes but when she does modern attire, she does it with a bang, staging a one-woman style show that must leave the feminine contingent of audiences gasping. This colored musical is at the Ohio.
Spans the Years.
Jackie Cooper the kid who jerked your tears a few years ago in Wallace Beery pictures, is making a valiant effort to bridge his childhood and young boyhood years, so that his picture career will not suffer. Jackie, who recently did a nice bit of work in support of Deanna Durbin, plays a scrapping, conscientious newsboy in "Newsboys' Home" at the Madison. Edmund Lowe is co-featured with Jackie.

Crook Themes.
Two "crook" pictures are combined to make up the Park bill for the one-day showing on Wednesday. First of these is "10th Avenue Kid," the story of a small boy, a hardened criminal who takes part in the hold up of an armored car in New York's financial belt. A newspaper reporter attempts to get the hiding place of the money out of the kid by adopting him and showering him with kindness. The second is "Romance On the Run" in which a famous necklace is stolen and a famous investigator is put on the case.
Powell as Cowboy.
Priscilla Lane, who is coming right along in a picture career which began when Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians made a picture with Dick Powell, is again seen opposite the singing star in "Cowboy From Brooklyn," at the Ritz. Pat O'Brien and Powell, Dick Foran and Johnnie Davis are in the cast of this musical Western. "Tom Sawyer," latest film version of the Mark Twain classic, has little Tommy Kelly and May Robson in well remembered roles Tom and Aunt Polly.
Career Advances.
Florence Rice, daughter of the famous Grantland Rice, and who plays the leading feminine role in "Beg, Borrow or Steal" at the Majestic, is forging right along in her screen career. She has a major role in the current "Sweethearts" and the lead in "Stand Up and Fight" with Beery and Taylor. In the Majestic feature she is the daughter of Frank Morgan who wants her to be married at his French castle—only he doesn't have a castle. Joan Crawford and Spencer Tracy in "Mannequin" is the second feature.

The best location during the winter for a cactus plant is the sunniest window available. The spineless green sorts do not require as much sun as the white and stronger spined ones, but sunlight is necessary for all. If pests appear, they are probably red spiders or mealy bugs. They can be controlled with a good insecticide.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE
By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authority"
NERVE THAT SHRINKS
NOTHING WHICH A kibitzer can witness is quite so disappointing as to see someone set out boldly and with high courage, then at the crucial moment lose his nerve and give up the fight.
Everybody would rather watch the bidder who gets up plenty high in his contracts than the one who ploddingly stays always well within the bounds of safety. But that kind of bidder should equip himself with similar fortitude to carry through the play valorously.
West cashed three heart tricks, then switched to his diamond queen, which South won. Followed then the trump K, J, A, Q and 10, then the marked diamond 10 finesse and the diamond A. With just two tricks to go, South saw he was home if the club finesse would work. If, however West had bared the K and held a diamond as his other card, the only way to prevent a set of two would be to come up with the A. Then there was the chance, in fact likelihood, that East had the guarded K, since he had shown nothing yet for his double but five small trumps.
After leading dummy's club 10, East playing the 9, South decided he must make sure of not going down an extra 600 points, so played the A. As a consequence, he was down 400 instead of making the contract—a total swing of 1500 points.

West having opened with 1-Heart on this deal, South showed his general strength by doubling. After West overcalled with 2-Hearts, South bid 2-Spades and West 3-Hearts in an effort to block exchange of further information between his opponents. This only caused the venturesome South to bid 3-Spades, whereupon North went to 4-Spades after all that strength-showing. East doubled and South, more bold than before, redoubled.
(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)
Against a heart lead, how should South play to keep from being set more than one at his 7-Spades contract?

Breathing Deeply Aids Health
By MME. QUI VIVE
With rouge taking a back seat when it isn't completely pushed off the beauty wagon, it is high time the dearhearts of this troubled world started to grow their own blushes. Deep breathing inflates the lungs, gives work to the interlacing muscles of the chest, keeping it high and handsome. Young ladies who wait about undeveloped breasts had better start a regular system of lapping up "ozone." As the chest becomes more robust and full the bust will take on normal proportions.
There are other benefits of deep breathing; the waist musculature becomes firm, warding off the middle-aged spread that is all too common these days.
Of the benefits of fresh air it is impossible to say too much. It is tonic to the nervous system. It blows away the blues and the cobwebs of dullness. It is mental and spiritual stimulation. Drawing it into the very cellars of the lungs promotes a free circulation of the blood, acting on the tiny capillaries close to the skin surface that gives cheeks the enticing rosy glow.
When breathing is properly accomplished, there is a rhythmic lifting and descending of the diaphragm that sends the air into every room of the lung house. Light breathing reaches only the upper lobes, the diaphragm scarcely moves.
Deep inhalations and a thorough expelling of stale air compresses the liver, the stomach and the intestinal tract, thus toning muscles, small fibers and tissues.
Breathe deeply for five minutes night and morning. Have a special time for these exercises. They'll bring you bright eyes, gay spirits, a clear complexion.

MADISON ADOPTS DOUBLE FEATURE
Two Pictures to Be Shown Last Half of Each Week.
The Madison theater, following a popular trend, will inaugurate a policy of a double feature bill for the last half of each week starting this week, Manager Gratien Johnson announced today.
The first half of the week bill will continue to be made up of one feature, comedies, cartoons and a news reel. Starting on Thursday and running for three days, two first run pictures will be shown.
The first bill, beginning Thursday, will be made up of "Burn 'Em Up O'Connor," with Dennis O'Keefe and Cecilia Parker, and "Ride a Crooked Mile," with Akim Tamiroff, Frances Farmer, Lief Erikson and Lynne Overman. Admission prices will remain the same for both changes of program, Johnson said.

Limp Budget Given Lift With These
By ALICE LYNN BARRY
Is your budget purse limp and saggy? Does your budget look as lopsided as a see-saw out of use? If not, after the annual orgy of holiday spending you may consider yourself unique, and you can skip this collection of recipes. If the answer is yes, then don't despair, for your tireless correspondent has collected several recipes that should assist you until things are right again in the budget department.
Rice cranberry parfait is a delicious concoction, so good with roast or poultry that it really ought to be classed as a luxury dish. It requires a cup of boiled rice, tablespoon gelatin, two tablespoons boiling water, one tablespoon lemon juice, one quart cranberries and two cups sugar. Soak gelatin in cold water. Cook cranberries, then put through a strainer. Add the gelatin to the hot cranberry mixture. Add the lemon juice and freeze to a mushy consistency. Open quickly and fold in lightly-chilled, cooked rice. Return to ice box or close the freezer for half an hour before serving.
Rice and carrot cutlets make another nice luncheon dish, one that is healthful, too. It takes one cup boiled rice, tablespoon onion, one-half teaspoon pepper, teaspoon salt, five tablespoons bacon drippings, one egg, one tablespoon milk, three-quarters cup bread crumbs, one cup cooked carrot pulp and parsley. Add minced onion and seasonings to carrot and rice; then add unbeaten egg with milk and stir until well mixed. Form into even-size balls and shape into cutlets. Roll in bread crumbs and let stand five minutes. Put drippings of fat in frying pan and, when hot but not smoking, saute to golden color. Arrange on hot serving platter and sprinkle with chopped parsley. Serve with apple or currant jelly.

EXTENSION PUTS HOME BUILDING IN NEW SPURT

Order Allowing FHA to Insure $1,000,000,000 Additional Mortgages Spurs Program.

The action of President Roosevelt in authorizing the Federal Housing Administration to insure an additional $1,000,000,000 in home mortgages means the residential construction industry can count upon a continuation of the financing facilities that have contributed so effectively to the revival of building activity since last Spring, Administrator Stewart McDonald said.

Largely as a consequence of the liberalized FHA program put into effect last February, 1938 has been the most prosperous home-building year since 1929, and with an extension of present financing facilities assured, 1939 should show still further gains, McDonald said.

President Roosevelt acted under Section 203 (a) of the amended National Housing act which provides that the aggregate amount of principal obligations of all mortgages insured and outstanding at any one time may not exceed $2,000,000,000, "except that with the approval of the President such aggregate amount may be increased to not to exceed $3,000,000,000."

Still Inadequate. Notwithstanding the gains in home construction registered this year, McDonald declared that "decent housing facilities in the United States are still grossly inadequate."

"An enormous task lies ahead in promoting sufficient construction to meet the country's needs," McDonald said.

"Moreover, the public is beginning to understand that the Federal Housing Administration for the first time in our history provides an unbiased agency to which the inexperienced layman may go for guidance and protection when he buys a home. The Federal Housing Administration protects the buyer and the builder against expensive and unsound financing, second-mortgage rackets, high-interest rates, hidden commissions, and other discredited devices which contributed so largely to the real-estate collapse of the early 1930's."

"In each of the 48 states the Federal Housing Administration has established construction standards to eliminate jerry-building. Through its land-planning activities, the FHA is assisting in setting up effective barriers against neighborhood blight and the development of future slums. Accordingly, the demand for the services of the FHA is constantly increasing. FHA mortgage-insuring operations are running more than double the rate of a year ago."

As of Dec. 1, the FHA had insured or had outstanding commitments to insure mortgages amounting to $1,585,000,000. In addition, mortgages in process of appraisal on Dec. 1 amounted to $115,000,000 and applications for mortgage insurance with appraisal fees paid are being received at the rate of more than $100,000,000 a month. "These figures, of course, do not include short-term property improvement loans amounting to $720,000,000 insured under Title I."

The sale of medicinal and pharmaceutical products in Greece increased from $4,000,000 in 1936 to $5,500,000 in 1937, an all-time high.

"Let your light so shine that others seeing your good works, etc. . ."

And so we believe Our Good Work has brought many a customer to our door in the years gone by. Will you be one?

Plan for English Type Bungalow

(By Central Press)

IN THIS bungalow the architect has skillfully worked out a plan with English exterior which is most attractive, as shown above.

Below, at right, he has taken the same floor plans and created an exterior of colonial design. The only difference is in the plan of the living room, where in the English design the hearth is at the front of the room, and in the colonial plan it is on the side.

A small vestibule or entrance hall, large living room, dining room, kitchen, bath and two bedrooms, comprise the interior. Each bedroom has a closet, so have the vestibule and the bathroom, and there are built-in shelves for books in the living room.

Size of the main building of this charming little house is 32 by 40 feet; size over all, 33 feet by 41 feet 4 inches. Total cubic contents, 24,700 cubic feet.

home owners whose hot water is dependent upon an automatic gas or electric hot-water heater.

All hot-water plumbing lines are a source of heat loss because of the amount of pipe surface exposed compared to the amount of hot water carried. In order to minimize such losses the pipes and hot-water tank should, if possible, be insulated.

The FHA property improvement credit plan offers a means of obtaining funds to repair, replace, or insulate hot-water systems.

SEES PLUMBING BOOST IN '39

Bureau's President Predicts 20 Per Cent Increase in Sales This Year.

With an expected increase in sales of about 20 per cent in 1939, the year is expected to be the best for the plumbing and heating industries since 1929, according to George E. Hoffman, president of the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau.

The accelerating volume of residential construction will account for a large part of the increase, Hoffman says. The trend of residential construction has been upward since July, 1938, with the result that current inventories of boilers, radiators, bathtubs, sinks, pipe, valves, fittings, and all plumbing and heating materials are low.

Modernization of residential, commercial, industrial, institutional, and educational buildings will continue in 1939, as in 1938 and 1937, to be an important factor in the plumbing and heating market.

Only 72 per cent of city homes and 34 per cent of farm homes have bathtubs, according to the federal real property inventory and farm housing survey, Hoffman points out. Owners of apartment buildings and hotels are expected to be among the best prospects in 1939.

Prices are still low. The current index number for staple plumbing fixtures as reported by the United States bureau of labor statistics is 78.5 as compared with the base index of 100 for 1926.

Prices of some individual fixtures, as for instance bathtubs, are so low that the homeowner today can buy two for the price paid for one in 1920.

THERE'S A SURPRISE . . .

There's a surprise in store for you when you investigate home-building possibilities with cinder-block construction.

You'll really be surprised at all the ways you can use cinder-block units. You'll thrill to its beauty—use any exterior finish you desire. You'll wonder at its permanence—an enduring permanence that outlasts ordinary materials. But most of all, its economy will please you.

Interior Doors Give Opportunity For Decorations

The interior doors of a home should be decorative and pleasing to the eye as well as useful, according to federal housing administration officials.

The conventional decorating schemes of blended walls, doors, and trim may be interestingly varied by painting the doors and trim in contrasting colors.

BEST TIME TO REPAIR FLOORS

Winter is the best season for a home owner to repair cracked flooring, because at this time the wood is thoroughly dry.

In repairing cracks, one of two methods is usually employed. The cracks may be filled with a paste of glue and sawdust, or hardwood strips may be placed in them.

When new flooring is necessary, funds to carry out the work may be obtained from lending institutions qualified by the federal housing administration under its property improvement credit plan.

Congress Coalition Blocks Confirmation of Hopkins

Ambassadors Urge Arms Program O. K. FAIR ENOUGH!

VOTE FORCES OPEN HEARING ON SELECTION

Senate Committee Refuses to Approve New Secretary of Commerce Immediately.

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—Conservative Democrats and Republicans in the Senate today blocked the attempt of New Dealers to win immediate approval by the senate commerce committee of Harry L. Hopkins' nomination as secretary of commerce.

The move, which would have made public hearings unnecessary, was made when chairman Josiah W. Bailey, D., N. C., personal and political enemy of the former works progress administrator and a consistent foe of administration policies, placed the nomination before the committee in executive session yesterday.

Asks Confirmation.
"I move that the nomination be confirmed," Sen. Claude Pepper, D., Fla., New Dealer, said immediately. But the anti-Hopkins coalition protested, forced Pepper to withdraw the motion and agree to hold hearings starting at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

The inquiry into Hopkins' qualifications and political philosophy will be conducted by the full committee of 20 members and will include such congressional foes of Hopkins as Sens. Charles L. McNary, R., Ore., Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., Bennett Champ Clark, D., Mo., and Wallace H. White, Jr., R., Me.

Bailey denied that there was any intention of delaying consideration of the nomination.
"We will act as rapidly as possible," he said. "Naturally, we don't intend to listen to rumors and opinions, but we will hear any substantial statement by any senator or by any person in the United States, for that matter."

Benny Before U. S. Grand Jury Today In Smuggling Case

NEW YORK—JNS—Bantering Jack Benny, the radio comedian, had a late afternoon appointment with the federal grand jury today for the purpose of making a voluntary explanation of his association with Albert N. Chaperau, the convicted smuggler.

Apparently little worried and in the best of spirits, Benny arrived at Newark airport last evening after a quick dash from the coast "to get this smuggling business cleared up," as he expressed it. He was accompanied by Myrt Blume, his business manager.

"I don't know anything and I won't know anything until after I've talked with some people," Benny said. "I am not under subpoena. I was called to New York several weeks ago but they didn't want me so I decided to come out again to find out what it's all about."

It was believed Benny is desirous of telling the grand jury concerning $1,200 in jewelry which he gave his wife and comedy partner, Mary Livingston, and which federal authorities charge was brought to this country by Chaperau.

The debonair Chaperau who described himself as an intimate of many film stars was convicted in double quick time on the first of four smuggling indictments in which he was named.

Rev. Morton, who broadcasts twice weekly over station CKLW, Windsor, will be accompanied here by singers who appear on his radio broadcasts.

INFANT BURIED TODAY

LOUDONVILLE—Funeral services for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nestich, who died in the Ashland hospital Sunday, were held at the Swank funeral home today with burial in the Loudonville cemetery.

Up and Down THE STREET

Officials at Senior high school are trying to locate the owner of a 34-year-old M. H. S. class pin found during the Christmas holidays by a high school student. The pin is from the class of 1905, and was discovered near the Mansfield Savings bank at Main and Fourth streets. The owner can have the pin by contacting H. D. Bishop, assistant principal at the school.

More game was killed in this vicinity during the past hunting season than in many years, according to Mansfield sportsmen, but there will be no shortage next fall, especially as far as rabbits are concerned. Today 33 dozen bunnies, shipped in from Missouri, were liberated by Game Warden Charles I. Kimmel and Richland County fish and game officials, and tomorrow 14 dozen more will be sent here.

Richland county's annual "after-holiday crime wave" had boosted the population of the county jail to 36 today, the most prisoners the jail has had in several months. County officers pointed out that the jail population drops about Christmas time when the county apparently is on its good behavior, and then rises after the holidays.

Columbus papers yesterday were taken over with pictures of the inaugural scene, and Mansfield was not overlooked in this parade of photographs. On the front page of the Columbus Dispatch was a four-column picture of state Republican leaders, among them C. F. Rutzahn of Mansfield, former governor Myers V. Cooper, F. F. Taggart, of Mansfield, a national committeeman, and John E. Galvin, Lima.

ANNUAL MEET

Red Cross Chapter to Elect Board Tomorrow.

The annual meeting of the Richland county chapter of the Red Cross will be held at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday at chapter headquarters in the Bowers building.

The meeting is open to the entire membership—anyone who enrolled during the fall Roll Call—and the new executive board will be elected, and reports given by all departments of chapter work.

Gertrude B. English will give several of the reports and others will be given by Harker A. Enlow, director of safety work for the chapter; Fred L. Tracy, chairman of life saving, and Mrs. W. J. Bishop, chairman of Junior Red Cross.

ENGINEERS PLAN STEEL MILL TOUR

They'll See Steel Made at Empire Plant Tomorrow.

The recently organized Mansfield division of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will hold its January meeting at the plant and office of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company tomorrow at 7:30 p. m.

Groups will meet at the office building and from there will be taken on a tour of the plant. They will be shown the entire process of making steel, from the open hearth to the completed product.

After the tour members will meet in the office building where W. C. Cox, chief metallurgist, will show movies which will explain the process, and an open discussion will be held.

APPROPRIATION BILL UP TONIGHT

3 Other Measures, Parking Meter Plan on Docket for Special Session.

Three measures will come before city council for approval at a special meeting tonight, contingent on the passage of the 1939 appropriations bill, drafted by the finance committee last Friday.

Besides these four pieces of legislation, council also is expected to hear a second reading of an ordinance calling for the installation of parking meters in downtown Mansfield. First reading of the ordinance was held at council's regular session last Tuesday.

The appropriations ordinance allocates $708,947 for the operation of the city government during 1939. A total of $278,322 is set up in the general fund for operating expenses which represents an increase of $1,500 over 1938 expenditures.

Hinging on the approval of the bill will be an ordinance calling for a pay increase for Miss Esther Snyder, city hall telephone operator, from $960 annually to $1,200. Approval of a contract with the General hospital staff physicians for medical and surgical care of indigent patients also will be sought. The contract specifies $5,000 as the annual rate. Another measure asks the approval of a contract with the hospital for laboratory services to be rendered for the health department for the year at a rate not to exceed $115 a month.

JACKIE 'REAL TOUGH LUCK KID' AS LOVE COTTAGE SALE FLOPS

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD—Jackie Coogan, who lost his fortune, his job, and his bride, became the original tough luck kid today when sale of the furnishings from his love cottage brought perhaps a tenth of their value.

The 22-year-old Coogan, who is suing his mother and step-father for an accounting of the $4,000,000 he said he earned as "The Kid" in the silent movies and whose bride has left him because he couldn't support her, ordered all his magnificent furniture sold to the highest bidder.

"A guy has got to eat, hasn't he?" he said.
When the first session of the sale had ended, Auctioneer Benjamin Seewack, shook his head. He said Jackie might realize hundreds of dollars—when he should have received thousands.

The bidders didn't seem much interested in Jackie's two grand pianos, oriental rugs, oil paintings, ornately carved furniture, ivory miniatures and—as Seewack put it—other articles too numerous to mention.

Betty Grable, Jackie's movie actress bride, was home with mother. Jackie also was absent as Seewack sought for bids on some of the most luxurious furnishings movie money ever bought.

He called for an initial bid of $2,000 on the collection of 28 miniatures by such artists as Coss, Gainsborough and others and got an offer of $500. Seewack rejected that and tried to sell the pieces one by one. He asked $100 for the first one and got a $10 offer, which went up dollar by dollar to $15. Seewack disgustedly withdrew the rest.

Then he put up the furnishings. One of the pianos went for $150; the other — a $3,000 grand — brought $450. A pink checkered lounge which looked as if Betty never had sat upon it, went for $80. It cost Jackie $205.

CONVENE HERE

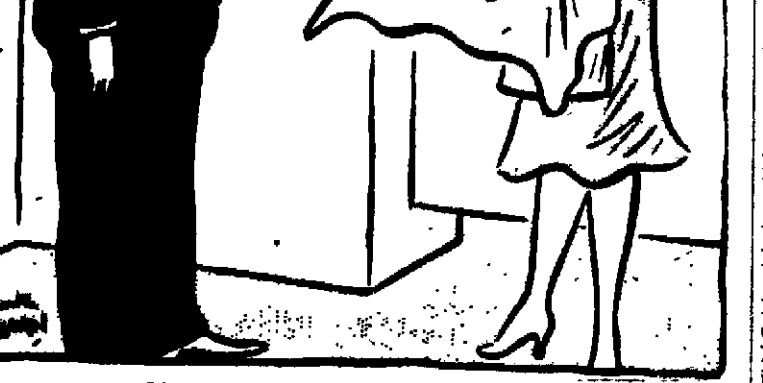

K. of C. From 8 Communities Meet in City Thursday.

Activities and objectives of the Knights of Columbus will be outlined by state officers at a regional meeting at 7:30 p. m. Thursday at the K. of C. home on West Fourth street.

Officers and members from eight K. of C. councils in two districts will be here for the meeting which will be in charge of Ray McKowen of Delphos, state deputy of the order. Others expected to speak are John D. King of Bellefontaine, state secretary; James P. Lavey of Milan, state treasurer, and chairman of various state committees.

Knights of Columbus councils from Shelby, Mt. Vernon, Galion, Crestline, New Washington, Bucyrus, Danville and Mansfield will be represented at the session which is one of a series being held throughout the state.

TESTIFY TODAY ON NEEDS FOR DEFENSE BOOST

Kennedy, Bullitt to Appear at 'Closed Door' Meeting of Congress Group.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—Two American ambassadors brought confidential information on European conditions today to a secret meeting of the senate and house military committees, which soon will study the administration's defense program.

The envoys—Joseph P. Kennedy and William C. Bullitt, ambassadors to Great Britain and France, respectively—were expected to urge adoption of the armament recommendations to be made by President Roosevelt later this week.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's report on German air strength stood high on the list of private information likely to be brought before the committee session.
This data represented first hand information gathered during and after the September Czechoslovakian crises, which Bullitt and Kennedy watched from their key observation posts.

German Force Superior.
One report on European air strengths which it was understood would be given the committees said that "Great Britain and France capitulated at Munich when it was realized Germany outnumbered them in the air at least two and possibly three to one. Germany, it asserted, has been building planes at the rate of at least 1,000 per month with further plans for expansion."

Both Bullitt and Kennedy have expressed privately their doubts of continued peace in Europe. Together with other diplomats recently reporting here, they believe Germany soon may start pressure on Poland and Rumania to open a corridor into the Soviet Ukraine. The latter then might be supported in a separatist movement from the Soviet Union.

A report current today was that Mr. Roosevelt would seek to have up to $50,000,000 made available immediately in order to get construction under way in several nearby idle airplane factories.

Bullitt, Kennedy and acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles spent several hours conferring with the president yesterday afternoon just before Secretary Hull's return from the Pan-American conference.

START EARLY

Fund Leaders Name 2 Groups for 1939 Campaign.

Organization of the 1939 Community Fund campaign will get under way early this year, it was decided last night at the executive committee meeting in the Fund headquarters in the Bird building.

A campaign committee, which will select a campaign chairman and aid in setting up the campaign organization, was named last night as well as a budget committee. The budget committee was elected for "staggered" terms, of one, two and three years, so that eight members will be carried over each year.

The general campaign committee chosen last night by the executive group is made up of Norman L. Wolfe, Fred A. Chamberlain, Carlton Fernyak, Rev. G. E. Swoyer and Jane Williams. A meeting of this group will be held early next week.

The budget committee includes Austin C. Rhoads, H. W. Arlin, E. Courtney and Carl H. Henkel, for three-year terms; William Switzer LeRoy Wittmer, George L. Draffan and P. M. Woodson, for two-year terms; and John W. Cook, Joseph Scanlon, Mrs. R. G. Averill and Mrs. J. L. Stevens, for one-year terms.

Roosevelt Critics Fail To Keep In Mind Tactics Of the Hoodlum Nations

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—President Roosevelt's discussion of our relations with the blackguard and hoodlum nations of the world and the necessity to arm against them reminded me of the effort of a tired man on an off day.

Mr. Roosevelt had a good piece in mind, but when he sat down to his typewriter it flopped away from him.
His presentation was untidy, but it should be remembered that an American president in repartee with bloody-handed killers who rule the lunatic countries accepts the same handicap that would hamper a gym-taught boxer in a battle against a gang of adversaries armed with cleavers, chair legs, sawed-off pool cues and jagged highball glasses. They fight to kill.

He must spar for points. When an American president speaks to congress, he must stay within the somewhat stretchable limits of public opinion in his own country and defer to the social, temperamental and political prejudices of his fellow citizens. He must conform to rules which are not binding on his foes and permit the American public to assume, if it will, that his opponents are acquainted with and fight according to the restrictions of diplomatic decency. From abroad and from his own people, President Roosevelt has heard himself accused of rattling the sword.

The American objection to President Roosevelt's warning asserts that the brawls of European nations are no affair of ours and that this country has been happily exempted from the malevolent plans of the dictators.
But those who believe that Hitler and Mussolini have let us alone don't know or else they forget that German and Italian conspiracies are maintained in American communities to incite contempt for the American nation and its form of government, that Germany and Italy have attempted to interfere in American elections through blood-tie conspiracies.

The Dies committee, though it has embarrassed its own data by its clumsy work, nevertheless has uncovered veins of evidence which, if followed by better examiners, would prove that Hitler and Mussolini, as well as Stalin, have destroyed the suspicion and the armed apprehension of the United States.

The president knows more than any commentator, and, although he spoke in lumpy phrases, he didn't half state the case against those who constantly scowl, pout and roar about their inflexible will and the inevitable vanquishment of this country's form of government.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN' COONS

HOLLYWOOD—This is the story of an actor's return to Broadway... an actor who learned to like Hollywood but liked himself enough to leave Hollywood in time. It is therefore, a rare story.

The actor is J. Edward Bromberg, hereinafter to be labeled Joe. There can be no doubt that he is an actor. Four years ago New York critics voted him Broadway's outstanding performer... for his role in "Men in White." He wasn't making big money then, but when he finally came to Hollywood because few can resist a four-figure offer—the ante had piled up in competitive bidding, Joe had waited because he liked the Group Theater and what it was doing. But three years ago he came.

This last Christmas day he left. He gave a Christmas party, a farewell party, and a birthday party in one, and he hopped off. It was a pleasant goodbye to Hollywood, an au revoir, not one of those Hollywood-don't-me-dirt gestures. "When I first came out," he said, "I took a little house after our New York apartment. Mrs. Bromberg followed me, and she couldn't believe it—all this luxury. We didn't like pictures much. But Hollywood does something to you."

What Hollywood does is epitomized in this incident. The Brombergs went to dine one evening at the home of a top-flight star. They saw grandeur on the colossal scale. And then they went home, and what had seemed like a palace looked like a shabby hole. Some how, before a month had passed, they figured they'd better move—to something a little better. So far, so good.

The Bromberg career didn't exactly boom. He kept on giving top-notch performances in whatever roles came his way. The ones I remember are in "Suez" and "Four Men and a Prayer," and maybe he has something good in "Wife, Husband and Friend" too but I don't know yet.

Last summer he went back east. Looked around, and decided it was Hollywood for him. On his return the Brombergs went house-hunting. They are going to settle down. It was probably the house-hunting that turned the trick finally.

"We were looking at places," said Joe Bromberg, "and being very particular. And then, suddenly, it struck us—what kind of a place did we want? We knew the answer. We were looking for a mansion on the Hollywood scale."

AUTO TITLE LAW HIKES COUNTY'S REVENUE $7,000

Motorists Pay in $11,500 for Certificates First Year

Act's in Effect.

The new automobile certificate of title law brought $11,567 into Richland county's general fund last year, figures compiled by Norman P. Henry, deputy clerk of courts, showed today.

The law, which went into effect Jan. 1, last year, replaced the automobile bill of sale, increasing the cost of auto registrations from 25 cents to 75 cents, and boosting the county's revenue from this source by $7,000.

In addition to the 75 cent fee, the law also requires payment of 30 cents for notation of lien on cars, 30 cents for cancellation of the lien, and 25 cents for issuing duplicate certificates.

Collect $4,500 in 1937.

The county collected approximately $4,500 from automobile bills of sale in 1937. Total receipts from the clerk's office that year were $10,489 as compared with $16,759 last year.

While the new set-up was boosting the income of the clerk of court's office, it reduced receipts of the recorder's office about $1,800, Recorder Howard Wenning estimated. His department lost the chattel mortgage fee which had previously been collected on automobiles and now goes to the clerk of court's office.

Actual receipts from the motor registrations in the county in 1938 were approximately $17,400, but the state received about $5,780 of the proceeds.

Clerk of Courts Fred R. Zollner said placing the new system in operation in his office required an expenditure of nearly $1,500 for extra help and office equipment.

BUILDING SPURTS

Permits for 4 Homes Issued to Mansfielders.

January building got off to a healthy start yesterday with the issuance at city hall of seven building permits, including four new residences, with a total estimated value of $31,575.

The construction licenses went to C. E. Little, 396 Davis road, who will build a home at 441 Dayton road at an estimated cost of $5,500; B. H. Barr, 31 Greenwood avenue, for construction of a duplex residence at 4 Henry street, estimated at $8,525; L. L. Wolf, 417 West Fifth street, for a residence at 628 Scholl road, valued at $5,360; and James Beymer, for a $5,600 residence at 512 Cline avenue.

Remodeling permits were issued to Frank Beymer, 118 South Main street, for $1,500; J. F. O'Donnell, 714 West Third street, for a $750; and Albert Martin, 473 Wayne street, for a $400 remodeling job.

All seven of the permits were taken out by Frank Beymer, Mansfield contractor, who will do the work.

3 Months After Munich— MONEY TROUBLE FORCING FRANCE TO 'BACK SEAT'

'Three-Year Program' Nation's Last Card in Fight to Keep Top Power Standing.

BACKGROUND

Last September 29, Premier Daladier of France and Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain consented at Munich to German demands for partitioning of Czechoslovakia. Maybe that act prevented war. It also marked the retreat of Europe's two great democracies before Europe's two great fascist powers. Yesterday William McGuffin told what the three months since Munich have meant to Britain. Today he discusses France.

By WILLIAM MCGUFFIN
(AP Feature Service Writer)

PARIS—Democratic France today is like the beautiful lady at the circus who gets on top of a pile of shaky tables and starts rocking back and forth.

Only France is doing it not to thrill the crowd but because she can't help herself. Her very neck is at stake.

It's the toughest spot the Third Republic has ever been on—and it has been on some mighty tough ones in its day.

A financial crisis of many years standing already had France swinging wide when the prestige-shattering Munich deal cropped up to emphasize the swing. Now there's more financial trouble and internal disharmony.

To pull out, Finance Minister Paul Reynaud has inaugurated a "three-year recovery program" which he says is democratic France's last card. It is nice to the rich in the hope that rich industrialists will bring their money back from abroad and start industry.

Labor Troubles Over? Reynaud said his program of higher indirect taxes and longer hours of work is meant to help labor as much as capital. But organized labor called general strike, although it flopped when Prime Minister Edouard Daladier applied strong arm methods. Many say labor has played its trump card. Others say, "just wait!"

Poor old France has reason to cry in her wine. Twenty short years have reversed her fortunes. Picture her after the war—mighty France who dictated a peace designed to keep Fritz permanently humbled. Germany was surrounded with an "iron ring" of French allies.

France was the topflight military power on the continent. Germany was weak.

France also had the League of Nations and the Kellogg pact.

Pleasant Dreams.

French foreign office experts were busily plotting the extension of French hegemony, were dreaming of a 50-year peace under French direction.

France had a terrific war debt. But business was good. She had Europe's largest gold reserve and was spending money on reconstruction lavishly, for was not Germany to pay the bill?

When Germany became exhausted and stopped paying France promptly marched an army into Germany's industrialized Ruhr—like a landlord foreclosing a mortgage.

Above all there was a spirit of warm cooperation between French capital and labor.

Now Nazis on Top.

Today, France and Germany have traded roles. When Daladier decided to bow to Hitler at Munich last September rather than fight for Czechoslovakia he severed the key link in the iron ring.

Now Germany is forging an iron ring—and around France. The German and Italian frontiers are now hostile. And if Franco wins the Spanish war most observers say the Spanish frontier will become hostile too. Worse still, if Italy retains her bases in the Balearic islands, France's vital communications with her North African colonies will be in grave danger. And Italy is covetously eyeing Tunisia.

A rearmored, rejuvenated Germany now rules the continent. France may still have the best army but her air force is a wash-out. Impartial experts estimate only a few of her "first line" planes would be a match for the German machines.

France has her Maginot line of eastern fortifications. But Germany has her Siegfried line. (Anyway, these are largely negative weapons of defense.)

The league has been all but fatally battered. France has lost her influence in Eastern Europe.

DR. F. M. EDWARDS' DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

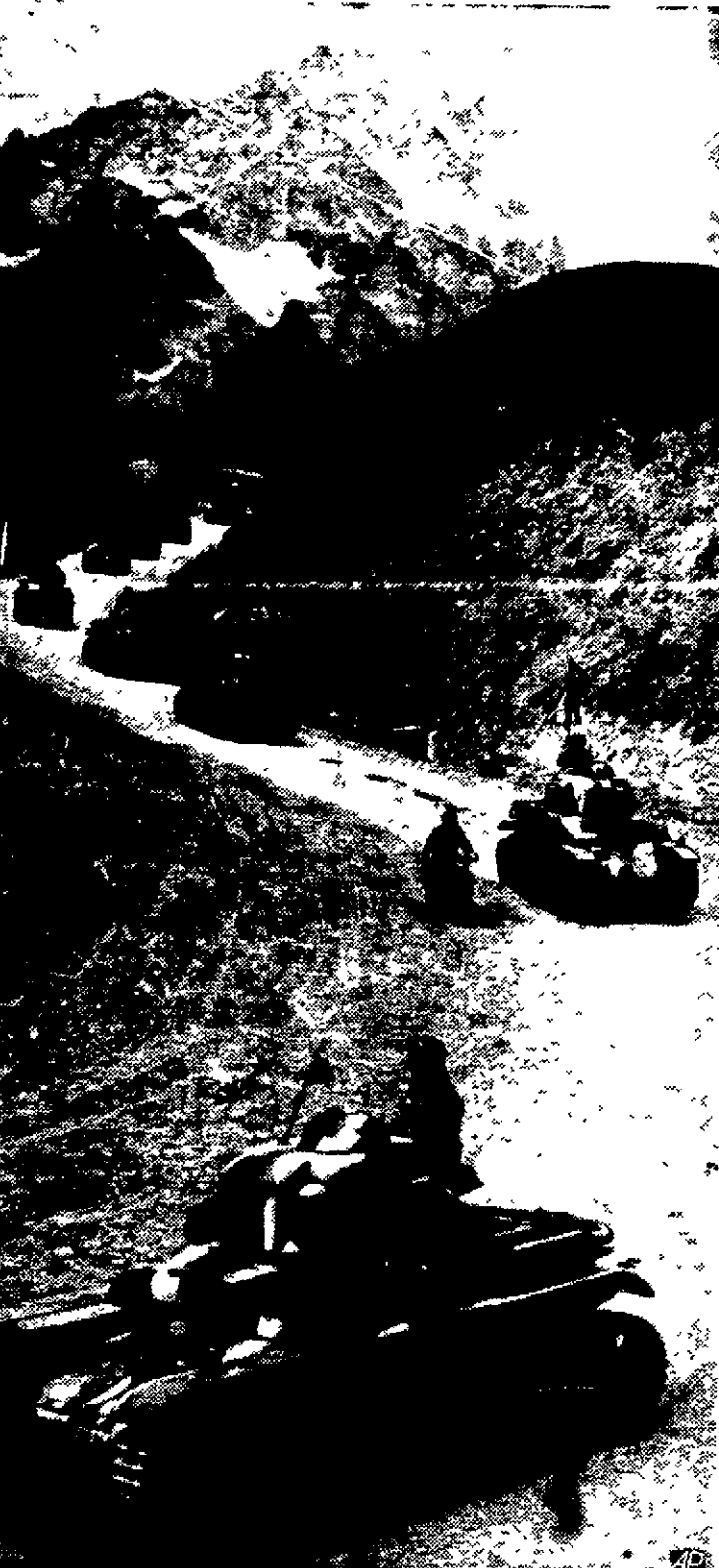

Benefits Nation of Sufferers!

COLUMBUS, OHIO: For over 20 years Dr. F. M. Edwards (widely known physician) successfully treated scores of patients for constipation and the headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness which often result.

This wise Doctor knew liver bile must flow freely every day into your intestines or fatty foods can't be properly digested and you may become constipated. So he kept this in mind when he perfected his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are harmless, yet they assure gentle, thorough bowel movements and ALSO help stimulate bile flow. Test their goodness TONIGHT! 15¢, 30¢, 60¢.

Army Strong, Air Fleet Weak

France's army on the ground, as exemplified by these tanks maneuvering in the Alps, is large and powerful—probably the world's strongest. But reckoning armed strength these days calls for a look skyward—and France's air force is weak.

RAZING OF DESERTED MANSION, LANDMARK IN CITY, UNDER WAY

One of the residential landmarks of Mansfield, the once elegant old mansion which stood at the corner of Mulberry and West Fourth street, is being razed because it had become an "eyesore" and a temptation to small boys inclined to be destructive.

The Citizens Saving and Loan company, which has owned the lot and building since 1931, will raze it and level off the lot, Fred Brister, president, said.

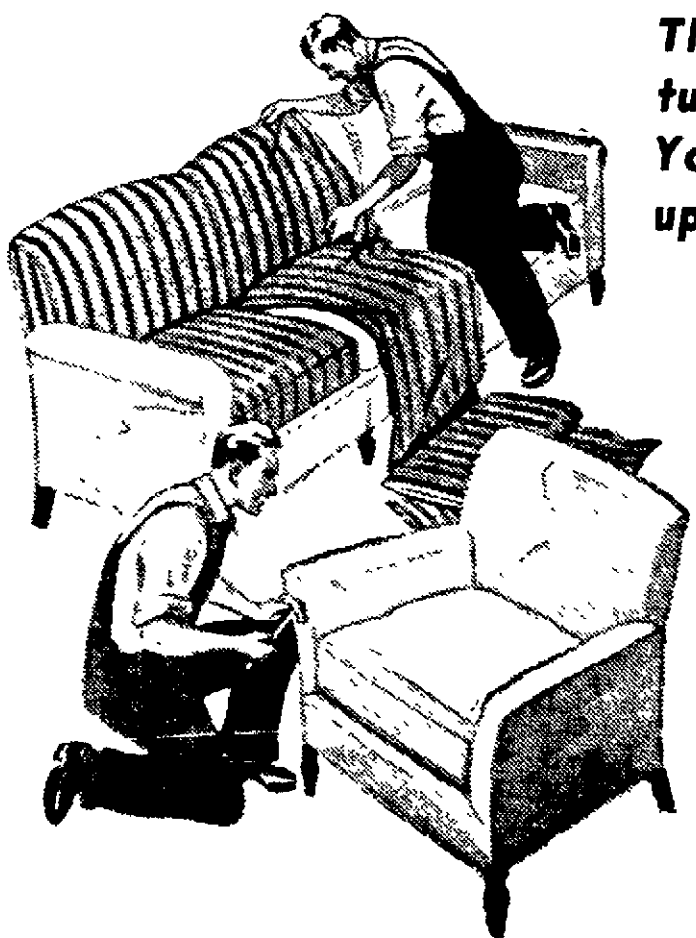

The big high-ceilinged rooms, which held only a ghostly emptiness for the past few years, were once the center of attraction for Mansfield's first families, and it was one of the most pretentious homes in the city.

The three-story brick mansion was built in the 1870's by F. E. Tracy, who was the founder of the present Tracy and Avery company. It contained the first billiard room in a private home in Mansfield, and its big drawing room, music room and library, its beautiful stairs with the stained glass windows were the scenes of many fashionable parties.

At the beginning of the last decade of the 19th century, the home was purchased from Tracy by Capt. William Taylor, who with B. F. Crawford, owned the cracker factory which afterward became the National Biscuit company.

Some fear she may go dictatorial. They see in Daladier a fascist führer who will take over if France's finances continue in their present desperate plight.

CHAPTER 43

Young Gurley turned to run from the washroom as excitedly as he had run into it. He had announced his intention of getting the police because of the planted bracelet, this still being the only course he could think of. And he had been hurt by finding Holgate in such a surprising situation, practicing gambling with whiskey at hand.

"Stop, I tell you!" the older man commanded. He darted after Gurley and caught his arm. "Wait! Come back here and let me explain! You must not have me arrested. You mustn't do this!"

Holgate was stronger, and older. And a professor as well. He could command obedience. Moreover, Worthington was relieved to have someone actually direct him, for he himself had been terribly confused.

"Now sit down here, Gurley, and listen to me." Dr. Holgate's chin was firmly set now. "I want you to know I have been a fool. I apologize deeply. I am not—not like that at all, Gurley. I want you to believe me!"

He looked intently at the lad. "That whiskey—it was a mistake. I drank none of it. I tell you the truth. I did buy it, and planned to drink it just to see what the effect would be. I wanted to learn—I wanted to be accepted by some of the young people who do drink, and I fancied this was the proper way to go about it. This and the gambling, too. I see now it was a mistake. I do not countenance such things! I am deeply ashamed. In your presence, sir, I humbly apologize."

"Why, it's all right, Dr. Holgate," Young Gurley was astonished anew at this confession. "It's nothing, I mean—I wanted the police for—"

"Oh, but it was! It was disgraceful. But any man will make a fool of himself at times, I fancy. I am genuinely ashamed of myself, Gurley. You brought me to my senses. You—you frightened me. I suppose, shocked me. I am glad that you did. I owe you a debt of gratitude."

"No, sir, I wasn't intending to butt in on you anyway. I was trying to tell you about Sara Sue!"

"Eh! What?"

"Yes, sir, Peaches and Sara Sue. Peaches is trying to frame her, I tell you!"

"Frame? You mean—?"

"Absolutely! She's a devil, that Pomeroy girl, Dr. Holgate! She is I admit I did get a surprise finding you here like this, but it's all right. I know people can make mistakes. If you didn't want the liquor, what were you doing with it?"

It wasn't a very coherent speech.

Crawford was the first president of the company.

Only two members of Capt. Taylor's immediate family are living, Miss Rose and Allan Taylor of Adrian, Mich. The Taylors kept up the tradition of hospitality and many Mansfielders will recall the parties and social functions that were given there.

In 1913 the Taylor estate sold the property to the Mansfield Knights of Pythias and it was used as their lodge home until March, 1931, when it was purchased by the Citizens Loan company.

At one time during the past eight years it was given over to the Volunteers of America as a "flop" house and soup kitchen for itinerants, and the big rooms once presided over by a gracious host and hostess, became the refuge of bums.

Brister said that he had no immediate plans for the lot, which has long since become a business site with Mansfield's march of progress.

But then, Worthington was still excited.

"I—I changed my mind, after you caught me. I am grateful for that. Never again will I so ignore my own pride and self-respect, Gurley! But what are you saying? About the girls—?"

"Don't mention it, sir. Any man can make a mistake. Everybody knows you are swell, Dr. Holgate. I do myself. I—I won't mention it. You see, I—"

"Tell me, Gurley! What about Sara Sue?"

Thornton Holgate had just vowed to himself that he despised Peaches Pomeroy. Now when a lad mentioned Sara Sue Davis, something stirred profoundly in him.

"She's in danger, I tell you, sir! That's what I was doing—I mean—I was trying to find somebody, trying to do something. You see, I was hid in the palms, and this Pomeroy woman got Sara Sue's coat and tore open a hole and then put her diamond bracelet—you know that expensive one—in the lining and—"

He talked fast, but he told the whole story. He had to be probed several times. But Dr. Holgate got every detail. His own mental fog had been cleared. Facts were assembling themselves in his brain, significant facts. Somebody had been plotting a mean, sneaking trick. Sara Sue Davis was in danger!

"Yes, sir, every bit of it! It was no joke. Peaches looked like a she-devil, I tell you. Gosh, I'd hate to have that girl down on me! And she hates Sara Sue. You may be didn't know it, but Bob Towne used to run around with Peaches all the time. People said they were engaged. I guess he got wise to her, too. Anyway, he dropped her this year, and he's going to marry Sara Sue."

Dr. Holgate's mouth popped open in fresh surprise.

"Marry Sara Sue?"

"Yes, sir. I know all about it. I was close to them, until my Marcia and I got married. Sara Sue helped us. Bob is crazy about her. He's out of training now, and he'll be making love hard. We've got to help them, don't you see, Dr. Holgate? Sara Sue helps everybody else with their love affairs. She helped Marcia and me. I'd do anything to help her. Don't you see?"

Indeed he did see! He, Thornton Holgate, understood far better than the young student realized. Nobody knew how close to Sara Sue the professor had been, how he, too, had been receiving her guidance, had been coming more and more to admire the lovely widow.

And now—Bob Towne was to marry Sara Sue! The freshman had declared it.

No! No, no! The thought appalled Thornton.

Why—he—he loved Sara Sue himself! Oh, he did! He had not realized it until lately, had never quite admitted it fully in his own heart before. He had felt duty bound to go on with wooing Peaches Pomeroy. Obligated. Promised. A matter of pride and principle. But now—Oh, my Lord!—"You say that Towne—Towne is—courting her?"

"Sure! He's crazy about Sara Sue, and I don't blame him. You ought to know her, Dr. Holgate. I'll introduce you. Or I guess maybe you have met her already, but I mean she's swell and all. If she wants Bob she ought to have him. She ought to have whatever she wants. She ought to—"

Dr. Holgate almost groaned. Introduce him! Why, he knew Sara Sue intimately. Knew her and loved her—and hadn't told her so. He could and should have been paying court to her all these weeks. All the fine days since school opened. He who had been so damnably blind!

Of course she would like Towne. Towne was a hero, a football hero. And about her own age. He, Holgate, was almost five years older than Sara Sue. That dawned on him now as another terrifying fact, as if it were a sudden high wall between him and the girl he loved—and with Bob Towne on her side of the wall. She at 23, and he at 28. It was heart rending, he felt.

"T. J. Sanders is crazy about her, too," the excited freshman said. "He's been courting her for months. I guess I could go tell T. J. And Howie Ladd likes her, and Al Taylor, and Fred Randolph. They all—"

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This at Home

Saves You Much Money, and It's So Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother used, but, for real results, it is still one of the most effective and dependable, for coughs due to cold. Once tried, you'll swear by it. It's no trouble. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar in 1 cup water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—a child could do it. Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of actually truly splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

And you'll say it's really amazing, for quick action. You can feel it take hold instantly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. No cough remedy, at any price, could be more effective.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

The significance of that struck Thornton forcefully. If other men, apparently several other men, were making love to Sara Sue Davis, it must be that she was not yet committed to one man. Conceivably Bob Towne wasn't yet the victor!

"What about her?" he suddenly demanded of Worthington. "Is she favoring just one? Has she chosen one of them? Towne, maybe?"

"No, I don't think so. But say, I can't sit here and talk! I've got to do something about that trick. Haven't I? About the bracelet!"

"Yes! I should say so, Gurley. Come on."

An hour later a colored janitor, drifting through the washroom with brush and dustpan picking up cigar butt, found two dice and a full bottle of whiskey—to his combined delight and surprise. He never knew how they came there.

The professor and the freshman found the checking room still deserted. They had come around the dancing crowd without attracting attention. Worthington ducked back of the counter and got Sara Sue's coat at once.

"See? See? Feel it—it's still here!" He was squeezing the bottom of the garment.

Dr. Holgate took it and felt the bracelet within. His alarm mounted as he began to verify what he felt might have been just a hoax, or an error on the boy's part.

It was quite a job to remove the bracelet without tearing the coat. It had to be worked up the lining to the small hole that Peaches had made, a rip almost invisible. But when he finally had the piece, Thornton knew it was of great value.

"Amazing!" muttered he. "Something knavish was afoot here!" "I told you so, didn't I?" Worthington whispered. "We gotta DO something!"

MAPS BILL TO REVISE OHIO'S WELFARE PLAN

Sherwood's Proposal Would Create 4 Major Divisions in State Department.

(By International News Service) COLUMBUS—The creation of four major divisions in the welfare department will be recommended in a bill to the legislature being drafted by Charles H. Sherwood, Fremont, new state welfare director. It was announced today.

The bill will recommend complete reorganization of the welfare department and will follow closely the Sherill survey. Sherwood said that the proposed program also would conform with the aims outlined by Governor John W. Bricker before the Ohio welfare conference last September.

Separate Functions.

The four divisions would be administration, mental hygiene, corrections and social administration. The division of corrections would be entrusted with various phases of penal operations and would include supervision of paroles.

The administration division would have charge of the operation of staff services within the welfare department while the division of mental hygiene would be set up to aid the mentally ill.

Operation of a children's bureau, programs for the handicapped, a bureau of public assistance and a bureau of institutions would be included in the social administration division. The public assistance bureau would include supervision of industrial schools.

"The reorganization bill," Sherwood said, "will not expand functions delegated to the welfare department but will bring together functions already in operation which will result in co-ordination and a greater degree of efficiency in administering Ohio's welfare needs."

The new welfare director said that proposed division chiefs would be selected from civil service lists.

Miller Discusses 'Educational Zipper' at Prospect School.

W. L. Miller, superintendent of public schools, addressed members of the Prospect school Parent-Teacher association at a meeting last night. Miller spoke on "Educational Zipper." A program of Negro spirituals was presented by Mrs. David Ireland and a group of young people from the First Methodist church.

The business meeting was in charge of Ora Bauer, vice president of the association, and Mrs. Carl Kunert and Mrs. Howard Miller were co-chairmen of the meeting.

Friends Say New Governor to Call Grand Jury to Probe 'Graft' in State.

cussion with his intimates on the subject, he insisted upon it.

The scope of the investigation which the governor was said to have in mind was not learned immediately, but it was indicated that it would take as the basis for further inquiry revelations made last winter by the senate graft investigation in which the liquor and state highway departments were most severely taken to task.

Governor Bricker was said to have incorporated an announcement of his intentions in his inaugural speech originally but that he deleted it after being persuaded that such a topic would strike a harsh note at the inaugural ceremonies.

Gives Strong Hint.

To set the inquiry into operation Attorney General Herbert must be specifically authorized by the governor to call a grand jury. Under present laws the attorney general lacks authority to institute proceedings of this kind on his own initiative.

The governor gave a strong hint of his feelings in the inaugural address when he said:

"When the privileges of government are businessable, when the state's business can be bought for a price, the institutions of free government are imperiled."

In his campaign speech of August 15 he declared:

"When I take office as governor I will authorize Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert to convene a grand jury. I will ask that grand jury to investigate every phase of the present state administration. I will ask the grand jury to spare no effort to bring to justice every grafter and every plunderer in the state government."

"All of the charges and counter-charges which we heard daily must be taken out of the field of rumor and the truth determined. Names of the innocent will be cleared. The guilty will be punished."

Want to Buy This Farm Town, Uncle Sam?

This farm town, Rhame, N. D., has been offered for sale to the federal government by the town's commercial club. Rhame is in Bowman county where 2,427 of the 5,110 inhabitants were on relief in the month of October. Repeated droughts and grasshopper plagues have swept the area. Virtually all the business men are facing financial disaster and, since the government has taken options on a large number of farms in the surrounding area, it may as well buy up the town, too, they argue. The photo pictures the main street of the bankrupt town.

JAIL BREAKER BACK IN JAIL

Prisoner Who Slugged Knox Sheriff, Captured Without Fight Near Middletown.

A 24-hour manhunt through Ohio was ended today with the capture near his home city of John A. Manning, 36, of Middletown, who staged a jail break Sunday afternoon at the Knox county jail in Mt. Vernon, and fled after slugging Sheriff Clyde Biggs with the butt of a gun that had been smuggled to him.

State highway patrolmen captured Manning near Middletown last night as he fled into a field after a truck which he had been driving went off the road. Patrolmen Robert Curtis and James Gardner said the fugitive surrendered without resistance.

He was immediately returned to the Knox county jail from which he escaped Sunday. Three other prisoners who broke from "bull pen" with Manning when the door was opened to admit several men to conduct a religious meeting, returned to their cells when the injured sheriff fired his gun at them.

Two of the men, Joe Gartin, 19, and James Fulton, 23, who were being held for the Knox county grand jury in connection with auto theft, had escaped from the Mansfield reformatory last November, and are charged with stealing a car in Mt. Vernon after the escape. The car was later wrecked in Columbus when the two sought to get away from police in an 80-mile-an-hour ride. Knox county officials were given prior claim to the two over reformatory officials.

Manning is being held on a charge of forgery and was suspected of two loan company hold-ups at Mt. Vernon.

article which commented on Frankfurter's religion.

"Are you opposed to him because he is a Jew?" Borah asked.

"No," Redd said.

"Well, leave that out of the record then," Borah snapped.

"I am opposed to Frankfurter because he is the author and brain trustee of the national recovery administration," Redd said.

"What proof do you have that Frankfurter is the 'father' of NRA?" Connally asked.

"Why, it has been conceded," Redd said.

"Don't you know that Donald Richberg and Geo. Hugh Johnson wrote the NRA?"

"They may have helped Frankfurter,"

Connally asked how many members were in Redd's organization.

"In the whole works myself," Redd replied. "But I represent the taxpayers, the consumers and unemployed."

SHAFFER GETS HIGHWAY POST

Ex-Service Director Appointed District Engineer; Hawley in Line for State Job.

confirmed by Gov. John W. Bricker, but added that it was almost certain.

"The announcement will come from the governor's office in two or three days," Prof. Taylor said.

Hawley was postmaster for eight years, retiring in 1933. He was employed for a time in the internal revenue office at Cleveland and in the state auditor's office at Columbus. Recently he has been an auditor for the Mansfield Telephone company. He resigned that post last week.

Although he is only 37, Shaffer has been in the engineering profession for a number of years. He formerly was with the Pennsylvania railroad company and served as deputy county engineer under A. L. Allen, former county surveyor. He is co-founder of the Northcentral Ohio Engineering company, Mansfield, which is now in charge of his brother, Kenneth L. Shaffer.

Appointed service-safety director early in 1936 by Mayor McFarland, he held that post until he became affiliated with the Portland Cement association. He has made his headquarters in Toledo, but it was expected that he would return to Mansfield to make his home.

Shaffer takes office in the midst of a controversy to restore five state highway employees to their jobs in the Ashland district. Four of them were suspended by Ivan R. Ault, retiring highway director, while the job of the fifth was abolished.

The civil service commission was to start an investigation at Ashland today of the status of four of the workers who were back on the job despite their 30-day suspension by Ault.

R. M. Greenlun, whose position as supervisor of road markings was abolished, said the grievance committee of the Ohio State Highway Employees association would appeal to Shaffer today to have him restored to his job.

If the request is denied, Greenlun said he would take his complaint to the state civil service commission.

Greenlun and the four other suspended employees, M. L. Hetsler, Gordon Schworer, Ernest Pion and William Mish, testified against Ault at his trial at Mt. Vernon last week when he was convicted of soliciting campaign funds for former Gov. Martin L. Davey from highway workers. Ault later was pardoned by Davey.

Each of the men said his suspension note was signed by Ault and gave "discipline" as the reason for the action.

REVAMPING OF STATE HIGHWAY DIVISION SEEN

New Director Considers Plan to Abolish Posts of 80 Resident Engineers.

Col. Robert Beightler, new state highway director, is contemplating a reorganization of his department which would abolish positions of about 80 resident county engineers, he said today, according to dispatches from Columbus.

Beightler said his plan would enable the department to effect a great saving in salaries and upkeep of the 80 offices involved.

His plans calls for increasing the number of state highway divisions, which would permit division heads to handle most of the work now done by resident highway engineers.

Boyd Weirman, Mansfield, has been Richland county resident engineer for the past four years.

Legislators Oppose Plan.

Beightler's plan would require legislative action, and reports from the capital today were to the effect that legislators would be opposed to the plan, which would mean the loss of that many Republican appointments. It has not yet been formally presented to the house or the senate.

Beightler's argument is that abolition of the resident highway engineer positions and increases in the number of state highway divisions would bring about greater co-ordination in the department.

Salaries for resident engineers average about $2,700. On that basis, elimination of 80 such positions would effect a saving of $216,000 a year in salaries, to say nothing of office upkeep. Beightler believes that creation of additional divisions would not require so much money.

No longer will you have to walk a straight line or blow up on an official's countenance to prove you're sober, for this balloon test for drunk drivers does the trick. WHEN WINTER COMES
By John C. Davis, Druggist.

Pressure on the busy doctor increases enormously with the approach of winter. Many require his attention who were well and gay all summer.

What about you? Perhaps you were sick last winter, got through the summer in good health, and now here comes winter again with its menace of bad colds, bronchitis, even of pneumonia. It is a period when you need the good will and spontaneous interest of your doctor.

Have you overlooked that small balance due him for services in the past? He is too busy, too kind to press you for it. But he is human too—he needs his fees. They are his only income. Put yourself in good standing with the doctor before another illness comes.

And do not overlook the importance of bringing his prescriptions to a store where they will be accurately filled.

U. S. 'Nuisance Taxes' Provide 600 Millions in Funds.

WASHINGTON—(U.S.)—So-called "nuisance" taxes which President Roosevelt recommended that congress extend beyond June 30 and July 31 when they are scheduled to expire, produce from $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 income for the federal government.

Among the levies which expire June 30 are those on gasoline, electrical energy, lubricating oil, telephone and telegraph messages, perfumes, cosmetics, matches, mechanical refrigerators, radio sets and firearms.

The taxes which expire July 31 are those levied on automobiles, motorcycles, motor trucks and tractors, automobile accessories, inner tubes and rubber tires.

Bricker, Nursing Sore Hand, on Duty Early.

COLUMBUS—(P)—John W. Bricker began his first work day in the governor's office by arriving five minutes early today.

The executive said he "felt fine" despite the rigorous round of activities which marked his inauguration yesterday. Three fingers were taped to cover blisters received as the result of several hours of handshaking.

Blistered fingers and sore hands also were displayed by three other new state officials, Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert, Treasurer Don Ebright and Secretary of State Earl Griffith.

Held to Grand Jury After Plea of Guilty to Breaking, Entering.

Pleading guilty in municipal court today to a charge of breaking and entering, James McClaskey, 22, of R. D. 1, Cardington, was held for the county grand jury today under $1,000 bond.

Unable to furnish bond, McClaskey was returned to the county jail. McClaskey was arrested in Mansfield late yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman a few hours after Jacob Williams reported that some clothing and a gun had been stolen from his home on Sixth avenue.

McClaskey, who confessed that he entered the house by breaking a window, also is wanted by Morrow and Crawford county authorities for burglary and breaking and entering.

SHELBY—E. J. Moore, magician, will present a special program at 8 p. m. today at the high school auditorium. The show is being sponsored by the junior class of the school as a benefit for its annual junior-senior reception later this year.

School Calls So Teacher Rejects Hollywood Offer

HOLLYWOOD—(U.S.)—Because she feels her pupils need her more than the screen, Harriett Abrams, 22, $85 a month kindergarten teacher in the Little Costa Mesa, Cal., school district, has rejected a $250 a week movie contract.

RKO officials, who made the offer, today called her "one of the greatest natural actresses they have ever seen."

Miss Abrams was discovered by Jimmy Moore, then a test director for Paramount, in September, 1937, while she was studying teaching at U. C. L. A. in Los Angeles. He saw her in a university production of "Ethan Frome."

It was only her second play.

"I realized when I saw her that I was looking at one girl in 5,000, one who would become a star in six months with the proper opportunity," he said.

"After the play I went back and asked her if she would like to go in the movies. She was delighted. She said she always had wanted to go on the stage or screen. At that time she really wanted to become an actress. So I had a test made. I had her play two difficult scenes from 'A Bill of Divorcement.' She was brilliant."

HEAR OF FORUM

Rotary Told of Youth Move by Dr. Wygant.

The Youth Forum, which is entering its second year under sponsorship of several Mansfield churches, was the subject of a talk given at today's Rotary club meeting by Dr. W. E. Wygant, who has been actively interested as a speaker and counselor in this movement.

Dr. Wygant explained the purposes and methods used in the educational program intended to give boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 18 a better understanding of various problems of youth.

Interest of young people in the Sunday evening sessions of the forum was mentioned, with the suggestion that matters of instruction dealt with at these meetings would probably be regarded later as belonging in the school curriculum.

A question and answer period for discussion of phases of social hygiene followed the address. William W. Iawse was program chairman of the meeting at which R. D. Iden presided.

HOST TO SONS

Brotherhood at St. John's Church Holds Annual Dinner.

About 60 fathers and their sons attended a father and son dinner last night at St. John's Evangelical church, sponsored by the brotherhood of the church.

The program included a talk on the subject, "Red, White and Blue Unconsciousness," by Philip Smith; accordion selections by Robert Fraley; a blackface act by Arthur Touby and Glenn Bosch; an act by Russell Minch, and table tennis, shuffle board and dart ball. A welcome to the fathers and sons was extended by Harry Frietchen. Frank Vild presided during the business meeting.

HURT IN CRASH

ASHLAND—John Shutt, 43, who yesterday morning crashed into a bridge near Red Haw, is resting fairly well. Samaritan hospital attendants said here today.

Shutt, who was driving alone, sustained a possible skull fracture, a fractured lumbar and cuts about the head when the car he was driving evidently got out of his control and crashed into a bridge. He was only partially conscious, attendants said.

Got So Sick At Stomach Nothing Would Stay Down

Mansfield lady also suffered from bad dizzy spells, sick headaches, palpitation and was so nervous could hardly do her work. Vendor brought first relief in years.

"When I began taking Vendor and the little Vendor laxative tablets a few weeks ago, I just felt so bad in every way I didn't know which way to turn," said Mrs. Frances Black of 28 High Street, Mansfield, to the Vendor Man in Central Drug Store recently.

"My appetite was changeable. Sometimes I was hungry, and then again I couldn't bear the sight of food, but regardless of how little I ate, so much gas would form that I would have cramps all through my stomach, and my heart would beat wildly from this gas pressure. I could hardly eat a meal without becoming so nauseated I would have to throw it up soon after I had eaten."

"This upset stomach condition made me so nervous and dizzy that there were days I could hardly keep at my work. My head ached all the time, spots danced before my eyes, and I had a terrible taste in my mouth. I was getting such little benefits from my food that I felt tired out before the day had even begun. But tired as I was, my sleep was broken a dozen times each night, and I felt wretched upon rising."

"I am sure constipation was the cause of all my troubles, for within a week Vendor and the little Vendor laxative tablets had relieved this constipated condition. I had cleaned the poisonous wastes from my digestive tract, and that was the beginning of my recovery."

only taken this grand medicine for a short time. I am now able to eat what I like, and keep it down. These terrible dizzy spells and sick headaches are gone. I get restful sleep every night, and get up in the morning ready for my day's work. I feel so much better. And look that way, too, even my friends have noticed it. I can never thank Vendor enough for the way it has helped me."

Why don't you visit the Vendor Man in Central Drug Store, Corner Main and Fourth Streets, and let him tell you just how Vendor will help you, too? There is no charge, so why delay? Druggists everywhere sell and recommend this splendid medicine.

A tongue loosened by liquor has access to a vocabulary that sobriety would taboo.

It's nice to know so soon that the county fair will be from July 25 to 29—so that the dates can be kept open.

Don't be deceived by that common expression, "minor injuries," in connection with automobile accidents—it appears that nowadays anything less than a broken neck is regarded as a minor injury.

Can These Things Be Done?

WITH high resolve expressed in his inaugural address, John W. Bricker, Republican, yesterday took over the governorship of Ohio.

It was a gala day for Ohio Republicans, for whom ten years had passed since witnessing the inauguration of a governor of their party.

Mr. Bricker's avowal of intent as governor of Ohio serves as an excellent example of fine principles which many another executive has carried to his task in the past, only to find heartbreak in later realization that the machinations of practical politics stood in the way of actual worthy accomplishments.

"I know," said Governor Bricker, "that tremendous savings can be effected by the application of business principles to the conduct of our state government."

Everyone knows this—but can it be done, when thousands of loyal partisans are pressing for jobs and while dozens of special interests are striving for favors?

"We must frankly face the fact that for every service the government renders, someone must work to pay the cost. For every dollar collected in taxes there is a dollar less for industry and private employment."

Yet taxes have run rampant and wild extravagances of federal government have been reflected in profligate waste of state money in paying high salaries to worse than useless jobholders. Can these jobs be abolished—regardless of political pressure—and can there be assurance of dollar value for every dollar of public money spent?

"When the privileges of government are purchasable; when the state's business can be bought for a price, the institutions of free government are imperiled. We must not only honestly administer the affairs of government, but we must convince the people of Ohio that their government is honest, in order that public confidence in government may be restored."

Any attitude of pessimism on this subject finds justification in past experience—regardless of the political party in power. This experience has been depressing and confidence-shaking.

Concluding: "Favored are we to be able, at this hour, to respond to a great need. But more favored will we be when we shall have fulfilled the hopes of the good people of Ohio."

In the inaugural address of Governor Bricker will be found a complete coverage of the elemental principles of good government, honestly and economically administered.

If those principles can be carried into practice, or if the next two years show earnest and intelligent effort toward such accomplishment, the name of John W. Bricker will be destined to stand high in Ohio history.

And what a change it would be from conditions that have existed in state government during the past four years!

Trained Investigators Needed.

WHEN mystery surrounded the death of 28-year-old Clark Hayes in Union county last week, an experienced investigator from the Columbus police department was immediately called into the case to work with local officials.

While this case turned out to be suicide it had early indications of murder and it was important that all clues be found and used in solving the mystery.

It is quite generally recognized that police departments and sheriff's offices in small cities and counties lack the services of trained investigators of major crimes and the advantages of being able to call in assistance such as was given in the Marysville case can scarcely be overestimated.

As a part of the present state highway patrol it would seem possible to establish an investigation department, along lines of the FBI, through which quick action could be had in getting expert aid for police departments and sheriffs whenever there is a murder or other major crime in any of the smaller counties or cities.

Mansfield, for instance, can look back on several unsolved murders in past years in which modern methods of crime detection would have been valuable in working toward apprehension and punishment of the perpetrators.

If It's a Police Car, Beware.

THERE may be some motorists in Mansfield who do not know that in making a left turn at a street intersection they are required to wait until approaching cars have passed.

If there are some who do not know this it appears obvious that they are too dumb to be driving a car.

The only chance of arrest that is taken, however, appears to be when the approaching car happens to be a police cruiser, and that the "hundreds of others" whom Municipal Judge Kalbfleisch is quoted as saying are guilty daily of infraction of this law are not likely to be penalized.

The fact of the matter seems to be that lax enforcement of traffic regulations in Mansfield has resulted in many motorists getting the idea that so-called "minor infractions" are ignored, thus leading at least a few into believing that all traffic regulations are among the dead letter laws recently referred to by former Governor Davey.

If there was more assurance of arrest and punishment of traffic law violators there would be quick improvement in driving practices on Mansfield streets.

American diplomacy is so crude—our statesmen are always shocking foreign governments by asking them to do something practical.

According to a British court ruling, poker is a game of chance and not of skill—just as some folks may have suspected.

Walking is a healthful exercise—but not jaywalking.

Watching Trends

WASHINGTON — Virtually all the speculation as to what will happen when independent Democrats team up with Republicans to harness the administration is based on hazy assumptions that Republicans stick together like flies on a molasses can. But they don't.

We checked back over the important votes of the 1937-38 senate and about the only matter on which the Republicans voted unanimously was to keep politics out of relief. That was a high ideal which the Republicans could vote for safely because they did not have control of the relief administration.

What might have happened if Republicans had controlled relief is another matter. Certainly a goodly number of Democrats voted against such a restriction. Democrats had to measure high ideals on one side against the advantage of using WPA in tough battles in the primaries—and were not too bashful to say so.

Republican senators were close to unanimous against the original wage-hour bill, only two voting for it. When it came out of conference in a much milder form, however, several Republicans indicated they were less critical of it.

Labor Problem Localized.

WHEN this legislation comes up for amendment this session Democratic independents probably will find anything but a solid bloc of Republicans to rely upon, either to push through one type of amendments or to block others. With many senators—and the same is true in the House—labor has become very much of a local problem, depending whether the CIO or AFL is stronger back home. Even the Supreme Court couldn't elevate that situation to a national basis.

On the controversial confirmation of Hugo Black to the Supreme Court (the vote came before his alleged Klan affiliation was published), three Republican senators voted for him while nine Republicans opposed.

The farm (crop control) bill found two Republican senators in support, 11 opposed.

Two Republicans supported the Guffey coal control bill, seven opposed it. The housing act drew four opposing Republican votes, eight for it.

Dissension On Neutrality.

AND how about neutrality? WILLIAMS suspicious Democrats seek to join with the "Republican bloc" to curb the President's freedom in international affairs? One important piece of legislation which affects that control is the Neutrality (better called Isolation) Act.

When that came up in 1937 the Republicans split wide in five opposing and nine supporting. Moreover, its operation in the Spanish and Japanese-Chinese war situation has developed even further dissension.

Will the Republican bloc align solidly with independent Democrats to modify the President's national defense aspirations? As Al Smith would say, let's look at the record. The first step of this big defense program was taken last session when the billion-dollar Navy authorization bill came up. Eleven Republicans voted with the administration for the bill, three against.

One thing should be noted in connection with the naval bill. Of the 11 Republican senators for it, nine came from seacoast states which likely would benefit from any such building, and which also would be the first attacked by an enemy navy. There won't be any such sea-coast attraction to the big air bill, perhaps, but most of the big airplane factories are located in seacoast states.

The Republicans have split at various times on phases of almost every issue. They broke ranks time after time on different farm proposals and labor legislation. On just what issue is the harmony of Republicans and Democratic independents to begin?

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt jolted the old "peace at any price" lobby considerably with the first part of his message. It so happens that the extreme pacifist movement in this country has always been rather closely associated with religion—or rather with church organizations.

One line in the Bible which this group never liked to hear quoted—though it has been thrown at them many times by irate members of the Senate and House naval and military committees, not to mention sundry generals and admirals—is Christ's statement that He came not to bring peace, "but a sword." Roosevelt, some researchers assert, is the first important public official in 1900 years who made a public statement supporting that particular statement of the Savior.

But the President makes a strong and rather convincing case for the argument that religious freedom, in fact religion itself, is dependent upon democracy, and goes right on from there to prove that democracy is dependent upon defensive armament.

It is a queer and, to the peace at any price crowd, a very annoying argument. They prefer texts like "turning the other cheek" and "the meek shall inherit the earth" and others glorifying the virtues, and efficiency, of non-resistance. They prefer the attitude of the early Christian martyrs, who died in physical agony but spiritual exaltation, to the thought of a bright and shining sword to defend their religious freedom.

ON CAPITOL HILL, however, there is no doubt about the outcome. Lots of senators and representatives who are political, or personally, or economically against the President are taking off their hats to him on the deep religious note of his message. Not so much because the President brought forth a sympathetic response from their religious souls as because he provided them with what they regard as a perfect alibi for the next campaign. When they are reproached by the pacifists back home—and most of Drive on Infantile Paralysis.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE PLAGUES which have afflicted mankind are disappearing. It would have seemed a miracle to a man of Greece in the greatest period of her civilization, to be told that the disease which we call "malaria" would disappear.

It would have seemed equally miraculous to the man of the Middle Ages, or to the settler in the Mississippi Valley when America was beginning to be populated. Malaria killed more people than any other pestilence, more than all the wars of mankind's making, and yet since that day in 1897 when Ronald Ross discovered that mosquitoes transmitted the disease, it has become practically obsolete. There are many physicians today who have never seen a case of malaria.

Yellow fever once devastated Philadelphia and other Atlantic seaboard cities regularly. In 1935 in New York City it was written that grave-digging was the only business that was carried on. But since 1881 yellow fever has become a thing of the past.

Typhoid fever killed more soldiers during the Civil war than bullets, and diphtheria decimated whole communities of young people. But these are now no more. Certain cities in the United States have not had a death from diphtheria in several years.

With this record behind us, it is not impossible that any pestilence may be subdued. Infantile paralysis is probably the most dreaded of those that remain. The disability and lameness that may follow its visitation, make it so.

And while we do not know the exact cause, we have enough information to lead us to hope that before long we will be in possession of definite means of fighting it. We know that it is contagious and that it is transmitted from one person to another, probably through the nasal discharges. It enters the nervous system through the nose, passing up the nerve fibers of the organ of smell.

A few years ago it was announced by a medical clinic that by spraying the inside of the nose with a solution of a caustic metal salt, the nerves means of fighting it. The virus could not travel up, and prevention was possible by this means. The method formed the basis of a moving picture later released, called "A Man to Remember." It is unfortunate the play got such wide publicity because the method proved too painful and destructive to be practical, but at least it pointed to the magnificent possibilities in path to their own reformation and re-election.

MEANWHILE there is no doubt about what is going to happen. There will be bitter upbraiding from some of the national legislators who sincerely disapprove of big spending for preparedness, but these will merely be eddies in the current which will sweep on and on toward greater national defense.

As a matter of fact the number of attacks on the appropriations will not delay their passage as much as the enthusiastic and justifying speeches which friends of the big appropriations will make for the purpose of letting their constituents know the wiles and wherefores of their individual votes.

Love Never Lets You Down!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THOSE black moods when you wonder whether Decency pays . . . whether Service and Sacrifice are ever worth what they cost . . . whether there's any Justice in the scheme of things?

Doesn't matter how wise or good or brave you may be—sooner or later you'll find those questions clawing at your heart. Later, when they claw at mine, I think of Dora.

You've known a score of Dora's, probably . . . clumsy, shy, kindly creatures who are always slaving for someone, with hardly a "thanks" in return. My particular Dora is in her late thirties, unmarried, has held the same drab insurance job in Kansas City for the past 15 years. And expected nothing more.

Then, three years ago, she met a good-looking young drifter, several years younger than herself, who handed her the usual line. Lonely . . . penniless . . . misunderstood. Had a Marvelous Advertising Scheme which would make a fortune if only he had the means to study a couple years. And so on and on.

Dora swallowed it, of course—hook, line and sinker. Friends warned her, but no dice! Dora loved her Wonder Boy. He believed in him. "Some day we'll see!" And, sure 'nuff, we did. Just as she'd prophesied, the Wonder Boy made good. Pulled off a stunt that had all the building trade gasping . . . and landed Our Hero a fat contract in Chicago.

You should have seen the glory in Dora's plain face those days! And the ecstasy with which she began to plan kitchen linens and muffin pans! But not for long! For abruptly, with only the briefest "I'll be seeing' ya" note, the W. B. was off and away to Chicago—with a blushing bride to whom, it seems he had been married some five weeks since!

I was traveling when it happened; didn't see Dora for a month. Frankly, I dreaded facing her misery. To give everything, like that, and then find you'd been gypped—ugh! I felt poisoned myself, at the beastly injustice of it all.

Then, unexpectedly, I ran across her—and couldn't hide my amazement. I'd expected a drained husk of a woman for, even in her best moments, Dora had seemed vague and uncertain. But there was no uncertainty in this new Dora. To the contrary, she radiated a settled serenity and strength . . . as if, at last, she'd found and finished herself.

But how—and what! Her laughter broke across my stupid gaping. "I know what you're trying to say, Elsie," she smiled, "don't you think I've been terribly cheated and abused; that I've lost everything worth while . . . Well, I thought that way, too—at first. And then I discovered something that changed me completely. I DISCOVERED THAT YOU

The ordinary reader often thinks much of such matter would never get into print if some editor did not think it carried a so-called "journalistic appeal," whatever that is.

The few who add this article to their personal library will get the inspiration and uplift which come to those who sense, feel and attempt to clear away the wrongs and injustices of the world, some of which are inflicted and perpetuated by those who pose as being moral, but are unwilling to pay the price necessary to live up to their profession.

A Farmer's Diary

Fairness to Dogs.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I HATE to see any man abuse his dog. Quite recently I passed a home where a farmer was attempting to train a splendid well-bred, long nosed collie to bring his sheep from the woodland pasture. The poor dog did not seem to understand, and to emphasize his wishes the cruel man was striking the cowering animal with a limber hickory switch, until the dog howled with pain.

The dog looked up into his angry master's face and pleaded for mercy at every stroke, but found none. Those gentle, asking eyes were benumbed with pain. Then they turned accusing, and the large dog growled defiantly and ran for shelter to the barn.

That man was missing a great chance to make and keep a lifelong friend. No other animal seems to hold the power to understand a human as does a dog. He reads his master's very intentions and is unerring in his judgment. Yet he possesses that rare, cultural human trait of forgiving his enemies, and loving them that use him despitefully. Even such a cruel master as this collie had, may win his dog's fervent thanks for kindness, and at the first softening of the master's face, the dog will creep up to his feet and penitently wag his tail for forgiveness.

A dog on a farm is the child's fond companion and bodyguard in time of danger, his introduction to the animal world. A little, bright-eyed puppy will cheer the heart of any youngster, bring companionship in waking hours and pleasant dreams when slumber overtakes him.

No wonder nearly every farmer has a dog. For work or play they fit most happily into his scheme of life.

TILT OVER WPA STRENGTH TEST FOR ROOSEVELT

'Showdown' Nearing on First Battle in New Congress; Fund Slash Looms.

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON—Congressional economy advocates and critics of "politics in relief" moved rapidly today toward an initial showdown with Roosevelt forces over the Works Progress administration.

Interest in the outcome was heightened on Capitol Hill by its being the first test of the president's strength in both house and senate.

On the house side, the issue was drawn by Mr. Roosevelt's request for an $875,000,000 appropriation to finance WPA until June 30, and on the senate side, by his nomination of former WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins to be secretary of commerce.

Influential members of a house subcommittee considering the WPA appropriation predicted a smaller sum would be recommended. Some wanted to cut it as low as $500,000,000.

Decision Due Today.

The subcommittee was called together at 1 p. m. to make its decision. Democratic members of the group held a private conference yesterday afternoon with Speaker Bankhead and Floor Leader Rayburn, but there was no indication whether those administration representatives succeeded in holding them in line or whether a compromise figure was agreed upon.

WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington declared the sum requested by the president was necessary if WPA was to make no drastic reduction in relief work. He was understood to have advised the subcommittee that at the present 3,000,000-job level, there still were 1,000,000 persons eligible for work relief who were not getting it.

Rep. Woodrum (D-Va.), subcommittee chairman, said on the other hand it was his belief that "the WPA can stand a substantial curtailment of its program without causing any great suffering by the people who are in need."

Meanwhile, members of the senate commerce committee were studying the report of the campaign expenditures committee, which charged the WPA with political activity, preparatory to questioning Harry Hopkins tomorrow.

After voting yesterday to request the former WPA administrator to appear, some committee members hinted they were interested in learning how much of the alleged political activity had been known to the "high-ups" here.

Confirmation Certain.

The campaign committee's report avoided any criticism of Hopkins personally, although it referred at some points to Aubrey Williams, national youth administration chief who was his first assistant.

There appeared no likelihood Hopkins' nomination would be disapproved.

With the legislative program still in the formative stage, there was little work for the senate and house themselves. The newly-strengthened Republican forces in the house, which indulged in an afternoon of heckling the administration yesterday, will hold a party conference soon to work out a more definite policy for the session.

Rep. Woodruff (R-Mich), conference chairman, predicted the minority would be "a great deal more active" than in recent sessions.

John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, talked with numerous house Republicans yesterday. Influential party members said he apparently had decided to let members work out party plans from day to day at the Capitol, depending on legislative developments.

Roosevelt Speech Praised By Eden as 'British Tonic'

LONDON—(AP)—Anthony Eden today told an Anglo-American audience President Roosevelt's message to congress was "a signpost which points the way along which all liberty loving nations of the world wish to travel."

Speaking to the American chamber of commerce in London, the former foreign secretary, recently returned from a visit to the United States, said it would be difficult to exaggerate "the tonic effect of that speech upon the British people."

"We live in a time and in a continent where liberty is discarded and our people see more clearly the effort that is called for from them if they are to protect the freedom which is their heritage."

OPEN SESSIONS AT OLIVESBURG

OLIVESBURG—The second in a series of discussion sessions for officers, teachers, and leaders of the Franklin, Adario, Pavia, and Olivesburg Methodist churches will be held at 7:30 p. m. today at the Olivesburg church.

The discussions will be conducted by Rev. F. M. Dickey, pastor, and will continue for three weeks. Other discussions in the series will be held Jan. 16, 18, 23 and 25. All discussion periods will begin at 7:30 p. m.

Problems of the church, church school, Epworth leagues as well as the future will be discussed at these meetings.

Miss Cress is a senior in Buyrus high school and a member of First United Brethren church.

PLAN CONTEST AT BELLVILLE

School Entries to Compete for Speech Award; Winner Goes to State.

BELLVILLE—A district public speaking contest will be held in Bellville high school auditorium at 9:30 a. m. Saturday.

Each school in district 12 which has a vocational agricultural department and a chapter of Future Farmers of America is eligible to send one contestant to the contest. District 12 includes Knox, Ashland and Richland counties.

Each boy entered in the public speaking contest must write an original speech on some farm or rural subject which is not to be more than 6 minutes long. Each boy will give his speech and must be prepared to answer any questions concerning his manuscript that the three judges ask. The winning contestant will represent the district in the state contest to be held at Columbus, Feb. 1. Entries have been received from Ashland, Savannah, Jeromesville, Fredericktown, Lexington, Bellville and Butler schools.

Immediately following the public speaking contest, representatives of many of the schools in the district will convene in the basement of the school building and will take part in a practice session and judging identification and grading of apples and potatoes. This will be in preparation for the annual state apple and potato judging and identification contest at Columbus, Feb. 3.

Plans for the day are in charge of D. T. Friday, chairman of the district 12 group and vocational agriculture instructor at Bellville and Butler.

MARTIN TO ASK AUTO PARLEY

UAW President, Facing Bitter Fight, to Demand Special Union Convention.

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT—Homer Martin, facing bitter factional opposition to his leadership of the CIO United Automobile Workers, announced after an executive board meeting today he would ask that a special convention of the union be assembled in Detroit "as soon as possible."

A formal request for such a convention will be made to the union's executive board at a meeting this afternoon, Martin said. Approval of the board, on which Martin's opponents hold a majority, is required for an official convention call.

Martin said the convention, if held, would replace the regular biennial UAW convention which had been set for Toledo, O., next August. He said he believed representatives of the local unions could be named to meet in Detroit "on or before March 1."

The proposed convention, the UAW president said, would elect officers and make such changes in the union's constitution as the membership desired.

Two Per Cent Boost Seen For Period In 1938.

CINCINNATI—For the first time in 1938, period sales of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company showed an increase over those of the same period in 1937, it was announced at the company's general offices here today.

Thirteenth period sales for 1938 were 2 per cent above those of the same four-week period last year, with a total of $19,207,034. Sales for the same four weeks in 1937 were $18,898,869.

Cumulative sales for the thirteen periods, ending Dec. 31, 1938, were $231,237,796, compared with sales for the same thirteen periods of 1937 which were $248,444,230. This represents a 7 per cent decrease.

Average number of stores in operation during the last period of 1938 was 3,394, while average number for the thirteenth period last year was 4,126.

ROGERS TO TAKE LEAD ROLE IN DRAFTING STATE FINANCE BILL

Senator P. H. Rogers, Richland county's new representative in the upper house of the Ohio assembly, has been named vice chairman of the important senate finance committee, and will have an active part in the preparation of the appropriation bill for the biennium, dispatches from Columbus said today.

Rogers is also chairman of the welfare section of the committee. Although this is his first term in the senate, Rogers served five terms in the house and was a member of the house finance committee. In that capacity, he gained wide experience in drafting appropriation measures.

Rogers told The News-Journal that he did not expect the session to be a lengthy one, and was con-

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. IBACH, 75

Former Resident of Galion Succumbs in Bellefontaine; Funeral Wednesday.

GALION—The body of Mrs. Marie Ibach, 75, a former Galion resident, will be brought to the home of the granddaughter, Mrs. Robert Bianchi of 127 South Boston street, Wednesday noon, and funeral services will be held at the Bianchi home at 2 p. m. Wednesday. Burial will be made in Fairview cemetery.

Mrs. Ibach died Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. B. Ackerman of Bellefontaine.

She was born in Saxony, Germany, on Aug. 26, 1863, and was married to F. W. Ibach who survives. Mr. and Mrs. Ibach lived at 447 South Union street when they lived in Galion, and left here nine years ago for Bellefontaine.

Surviving, besides the husband and daughter, Mrs. Ackerman, are a son, William H. Ibach, and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Weizorek, both of Galion; 15 grandchildren, and nine great grandchildren.

PICK CRAWFORD

Cleveland Officials Plan to Include 'Hatchery Center'

BUYRUS—Crawford county will be included in the tour of Ohio scheduled to be held next summer as a part of the seventh World Poultry congress to be held in Cleveland July 28 to Aug. 7, Russell L. Miller, county agriculture agent, has announced.

Delegates to the congress will be afforded an opportunity to visit various points of interest in Ohio, both for commercial and historical interest.

Crawford county is noted for more hatcheries than any other county in the state, with a total of 25 operating in the county. New Washington was the seat of the baby chick shipping industry and Chatfield and Lykens are noted for the founding of the Smith Incubator, invented by Dr. Smith.

RATHER SHOOT SOLDIERS THAN STARVE CHILDREN, BORAH SAYS

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Sen. William E. Borah (R., Idaho) denounced proposals for the United States to apply economic sanctions against aggressor nations today, contending that he would rather have this nation "engaged in shooting soldiers than starving women and children."

Borah, ranking minority member and former chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, warned the administration that application of sanctions would be a step toward war.

"I would only impose sanctions under such circumstances as I would be willing to go to war," he said. "I don't look upon such action as a peace movement."

President Roosevelt, in his state-of-the-nation message last week, told congress that "there are many methods short of war, but stronger than words, of bringing home to aggressor governments aggregate sentiment of our own people."

Chairman Key Pittman (D., Nev.), foreign relations committee, took issue with Borah.

He contended that modern aerial warfare wreaks its greatest damage on women and children and that the Red Cross always would be permitted to clothe and feed the needy in an embargo.

Pittman said that if all the democracies would follow the example of President Roosevelt—"of not considering themselves as leaders of the democratic front"—"then the retreat of democracies would cease."

He reiterated his contention that the attitude of Japan has become "more challenging."

PUCO Authorizes 12-Cent Gas Rate Hike In Cleveland

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The state utilities commission today set aside Cleveland's 55 1/2-cent gas rate ordinance and authorized the East Ohio Gas company to charge an average rate of 67 cents.

The company had requested a 72-cent average rate, contending the 55 1/2-cent figure was confiscatory.

All members of the commission concurred in the 67-cent finding and the company was instructed to begin charging the new tariff at its next billing.

The rate approved by the commission is 80 cents for the first 400 cubic feet and 5 1/2 cents for each additional 100 feet.

Decision in the case was expected to affect other rates in the northeastern Ohio territory served by the company.

The company has been collecting its old rate of 57.15 cents, which it had contended was sufficient to provide an adequate rate of return.

CAST SELECTED FOR 'WORKSHOP' PLAY AT GALION

'The Queen's Husband' to Be Given Feb. 10; Rehearsals to Start Tonight.

GALION—The cast which has been tentatively selected for production of "The Queen's Husband" by the Drama Workshop Players on Friday evening, Feb. 10, will hold its first rehearsal with Mrs. Loren E. Beck tonight in the new club rooms which are located under Dr. C. J. Griebeling's office on South Market street.

Announcement that the players had sublet these rooms with the Galion Camera club was made at the meeting of the Drama Workshop Players Monday night at the home of the president, Mrs. Griebeling.

One of the first social meetings of the year was planned for the next meeting to be held Monday night, Jan. 23, in the new rooms when a potluck supper will be served. Committees named by Mrs. Griebeling to have charge of this meeting are: food, Mrs. Paul Rorick, Elizabeth Bland, Jean Halbert, Marybelle Swick, assisting committee, James Nichols, Robert Thomas and Walter Stent.

A nominating committee composed of Dorothy Plack, Jean Casey and Ralph Smith, was named to select candidates for election to the board. One vacancy, made by the resignation of Mrs. Reuben Pounder, will be filled.

Following the business session, the program was turned over to Mary Alice Burden who presented Ralph Smith for a review of another chapter of a study book, "An Actor Prepares."

GETS RECOGNITION

GALION—The Galion Rotary club is in the 100 per cent column for its per capita contribution toward the Crippled Children's fund, according to a letter from the Ohio Society for Crippled Children which was read at the meeting of the Rotary club Monday night at Carmel's.

SPAIN'S ARMY DRIVES FRANCO TROOPS BACK

Spanish Loyalists Advance 45 Miles in Six Days, Barcelona Reports.

HENDAYE, FRANCO-SPANISH FRONTIER—(INS)—Chief military action in the Spanish civil war shifted to the southwestern Estremadura front today as the government claimed further successes there following capture of Azuaga, mountain city 60 miles northwest of Cordoba.

A communique issued at Barcelona stated government troops have advanced 45 miles on the Estremadura sector in the past six days.

The left flank, it was claimed, under leadership of General Jose Miaja, has passed well beyond Azuaga and occupied the approaches to the strategic town of Valverde de Llerena, near the vital Seville-Salamanca railway.

In addition, the communique said, Miaja's troops occupied Monterubio and the approaches to Castuera.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco was reported concentrating all his available forces, including reserves and war planes, from the Catalan front in the neighborhood of Castuera. Government intelligence advices indicated he may shortly launch a counter-attack on the Estremadura battle ground, and a battle of major proportions is anticipated. The Catalan front was reported comparatively quiet.

In the light of the Barcelona reports, it appeared the government's sudden Estremadura drive had succeeded in its original purpose of diverting insurgent pressure from the Catalan front, where Franco's legions had been registering sensational gains.

From the insurgent headquarters at Salamanca, however, came a communique denying the government's claims of success on the southwestern front and asserting that government forces had abandoned 3,000 dead in the Estremadura fighting.

The insurgents termed the government offensive "futile, desperate and not of the slightest advantage."
